Prof. Sue Berkman Retires

Since 2012 Sue has taught hundreds of NDP students in the Writing Intensive NDP 310: Diversity in the Workplace.

Former and current students came together to give Sue a farewell party on April 24th. Everyone enjoyed treats and cake and shared stories about Sue's class. Many students expressed their gratitude for Prof. Berkman. Former student Gloria Ortiz said "Professor Berkman will be greatly missed. She is knowledgeable, professional and has a passion for teaching. I thoroughly enjoyed her class." Diana Sanchez said "I am deeply grateful because Prof. Berkman's class gave me the tools to write well, think critically, and taught me about diversity on a whole different level ... her class has helped me succeed in my other classes where I am required to write essays

Lastly, Professor Sue Berkman has a few things to say to her students: "The students' motivation to complete their education, as tiring and inconvenient that it can be, is truly inspirational to me and certainly to their families and friends. Education is a partnership between them and the instructor. Their open, willing participation is what 'seals the deal.' I provide the tools and provoke thought; the students do the learning when they engage. Teaching this class was a joy and I am so much more enriched and humbled because of it."

Bob Dwyer NEIU's Oldest Graduate Earns

On May 5th 2019, Bob Dwyer became the oldest student to earn a diploma from Northeastern Illinois University. Like many returning adult students, Bob entered the Nontraditional Degree Program and completed his Bachelor's Degree in Interdisciplinary Studies. NDP praises Bob for his accomplishment.

Bob Dwyer, a great-grandfather, proves that it is never too pursue a college education. He is an inspiration for those students who may feel that a college education is an impossible obstacle. Dwyer told the Chicago Tribune that "education is always a plus and we can never have too much of it." And at NEIU's commencement in May Bob received a standing ovation from the students, faculty, and attendees. To Bob Dwyer, Congratulations from all of us!
