143 Graduates To Receive Degrees

Graduation exercises will be conducted in the auditorium on Thursday, June 23, 1961, at 8 p.m. There will be 108 Bachelor degrees conferred and 25 Masters.

Dr. Gerald Wendt, president of the UNESCO Publications Center, of New York, will give the commencement address. The title of his address will be "Preparing for the 21st Century."

James Swearingen, assistant dean of instruction, will present the graduating class to Dean Raymond M. Cook. As John Beck, assistant dean in charge, reads the names, the dean will present the diplomas. David Kopel, chairman of the graduate school, will present the masters degree candidates.

The graduation committee consists of Marie Truax, director of activities, chairman; and faculty members, Dorothea Choos, Walter Heinzl, Cary B. Lewis, Leonard J. Simutis and Paul W. Titman.

Dr. Simutis will direct the CTC choir in singing several selections.

The faculty marshals who will lead the students and the faculty processions are John M. Beck, Herbert F. Lamp, Frank N. Moore and Paul W. Titman. Fred Anderson and Irwin J. Suloway will substitute for Vernon Brockmann and Jerome M. Sachs, regular faculty marshals who are away from the campus this semester.

A reception for the graduates and their guests will be held immediately following the ceremony in the large gym east.

Children's Aid Donations Exceed Previous Records

Donations to CTC's collection for School Children's Aid Society amounted to $324.59. Although all envelopes have not yet been handed in, this sum already represents the largest amount ever contributed by CTC students.

Joan Tury, chairman of the Children's Aid drive, said all concerned were pleased by the generosity of students and faculty in making this drive a huge success.

The SCAS purchases new clothing with the money collected. Any teacher in the Chicago public schools can acquire clothing for needy children by making a telephone call to the SCAS. The SCAS then clears the case through the Social Service center and provides the needed clothing.

The Society provides a real service to children in the Chicago public schools who would otherwise be unable to acquire adequate clothing. As future teachers we should all be concerned with this need.

Scientist Will Address Grads At Commencement

Gerald Wendt

The commencement speaker for the class of June 1961 graduating class is Gerald Wendt, scientist, who will speak on the topic "Preparing for the 21st Century."

Dr. Wendt was born in Davenport, Iowa, and earned his Ph.D. in Chemistry at Harvard and afterwards he studied at the Curie's laboratory in Paris. Returning to this country, he became associate professor of chemistry at the University of Chicago and later, Dean of the School of Chemistry and Physics at Pennsylvania State College.

In the industrial field, Dr. Wendt served as Director of Scientific Research for Standard Oil Company of Indiana, as the first Director of Battelle Memorial Institute for Industrial Research. He was the first American to attempt to disintegrate the atom and one of the first radium and radioactivity experts in the U.S. Bureau of Mines.

Wendt has written numerous articles for such magazines as Time, Life, Harper's, Fortune, and Science Illustrated. He was science editor for Time and consultant for Life, Fortune, and The March of Time, and later served as editorial director of Science Illustrated.

Biannual Banquet Held by Tempo On June 17, 1961

The annual TEMPO banquet will be held on Saturday, June 17, at 7:30 p.m. in the Indian room of Don Roth's Blackhawk restaurant at 139 north Wabash Avenue, announced Carol Wallace, business manager and chairman of the banquet committee.

The banquet will begin with introductions by Miss Wallace. TEMPO service pins will be awarded to those staff members who have three semester's service on the paper. An award will be given to the "Most Outstanding Staff Member." There will be addresses given by the outgoing editor, the new editor, and Irwin J. Suloway, sponsor of the paper. The new editor will then read the announcements of the new staff for next September.

Faculty members from CTC have been invited to attend this affair. The banquet will close with the singing of the traditional TEMPO banquet song. Entertainment has been planned for the evening. Members of the journalism class have also been invited to attend the banquet.

The election spread over all possible outcomes. Miss Craig and Miss Bullock won by landslide votes, having no opposition on the ballot. Miss Cornish, on the other hand, won by only one vote over Jim Pudlewski.

Miss Tury ran against Ellen Duggan.

The new officers represent only three of the eight classes at CTC. The Misses Cornish and Tury are members of the class of June, 1963, Miss Bullock, Jan. '63 and Miss Craig represents the class of June 1962.

In order to qualify for the office of president or vice-president one must have been active in SC for one semester and must not be in the practice teaching semester.

A nominee must have been an active member of the SC for one semester to qualify for secretary and treasurer. All nominees must have a 2.5 average.

Last year's officers were Adelle Skepsted, president; Judy Buckels, vice-president; Susan Graig, secretary, and Carol Maxwell, treasurer.

Original Works FAEA To Present At Student Exhibit

The work on display has been done by students currently enrolled at CTC and was completed either here in the art classes, or in classes at other institutions, or completely on their own time.

The officers of the FAEA are Alberta Reams, president; vice president; and John Keating, treasurer.

The student art work may be 2-D or 3-D, painting, sculpture, jewelry, weaving, prints, mosaics or enameling. Any original work will be considered.

Judging of the art work was done on Friday, June 2. The jury was composed of the art department faculty members.

To formally open the show, the FAEA will have a tea from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. on Wednesday, June 7.

Marilyn McGrath; Bonnie Menzies Head January '64

The January '64 class held a special meeting to elect officers. The meeting, held on Wednesday, May 23, at one o'clock in room 212 C boasted a 40 percent turnout.

The class had been considered inactive and had been dropped from the Student Council because of the lack of participation in the class elections this semester.

The new officers include the following: Marilyn McGrath, president; Bonnie Menzies, vice-president; Mary Ann Smith, secretary-treasurer; Judy Eisenbrandt, Student Council representative; Christine Sherman, 1st SC alternate; and Lucy Stryszak, 2nd SC alternate.

Editorially Speaking

Sprinklers: Sad Sight

We are sure that most of you have noticed by now that Chicago Teachers College South is beginning to look more and more like a basement.

We refer, of course, to the installation of the new sprinkler system. While we realize that all schools in the city must install this insurance against fire, we do feel that there must be a better way to insure our safety that to do it by making the entire building look like a model pipe factory.

For years the administration has been trying to build up the morale of this institution. For years we have heard cries that the students were not interested in improving the appearance of the building. For years we have listened to pleas that the students show more school spirit for their alma mater.

Now the administration plans for a growth of school spirit and the plans of the new clean-up committee have been scuttled by the decree that the entire building must be lowered to a new nadire of poor appearance that is constituted by the sprinklers with their pipes.

There is no one we can blame for this sad turn of events, but we must voice the opinion we have heard many times from the population of this institution. After all the years of trying to improve the morale and appearance of their school we are afraid that any hint of progress in this direction has been destroyed.

After all, it would take a strong will, indeed, to stop smoking, eating and littering in general an area that gives all the appearance of being a cellar, piping and all!

Letters To The Editor

Unneeded Fire Drill Causes Reader To Burn

Dear Editor:

The extremely casual attitude that many students at this school take on the matter of complying with rules during fire drills is nothing new to the casual observer. What is motivating this letter to TEMPO is an even more alarming, and perhaps unknown, situation that come to my attention.

During the last fire drill on May 29 at least thirty persons did not leave the building. When the fire alarm was sounded, one instructor completely ignored the signal, continued classroom activity, and thus endangered his own life and the lives of all his students.

It is obvious that some means must be found to guarantee that everyone leaves the building during the drills. I am confident that when this situation is made known to the administration of this school, the necessary steps will be taken to ensure the safeguard of all our lives

Art Show, Packing, Excavation Author Gives Delineation

by Jack Naebig

We've all been wondering why the vacant lots on 69th Street have been blocked to parking by the installation of wood pilings.

It is unthinkable that construction or even excavation is to be done in these areas in the near future. Anyone familiar with our Board of Education's procedures is betting that two years or more will go by before anything is built on these sites.

Just when we were getting used to our fine new parking lots they were taken away from us! Now, most of us are back on the streets, cruising around, looking for a parking place within four blocks of the campus. It was nice while it lasted—wasn't it?

I hope many of you were able to see the Senior-Faculty Variety Show last Wednesday. The June '61 class really displayed a lot of courage up on that stage—standing there—in front of everyone. I wish I could think of something else to say that's nice.

Old CTC seems to be getting awfully arty lately. The sculpture and jewelry exhibits were very interesting and enjoyable. The art show to be held in the lounge promises to be every bit as good as it was last year when there was surprisingly little trash exhibited. We have Mrs. Neale and other judges to thank for the dearth of trash. They do a good weeding job.

If you think I'm kidding go to the old town or Gold Coast Art Fairs and have a good look around. Most of the exhibits are junk and much of it is insincere junk done up for the occasion.

Embarrassing Moments Recalled: Laughed Over

by Judy Eisenbrandt

Now that this semester is almost over (except for finals we all can look back with amusement at those highly embarrassing moments that tried our patience. At the time these incidents were far from funny and we regarded them with grim and straight-faced ill-humor, but now we can chuckle at them a bit.

Girls, how about the time, when you were in a hurry and forgot that you were on the second floor. Eagerly you pranced into the washroom on the odd end of the corridor, only to realize that the black letters on the door proclaimed "MEN." Fellas, how about the same situation, only on the third floor?

Keys Accompany Choir

Perhaps you can remember the time a rollicking song was being sung by the choir and a certain choir director's key chain broke. As the choir warbled on and the director furiously conducted, the keys jingled merrily in time with the music.

How about the math class where it took you five square feet of blackboard to write out the intricate solution to a difficult problem. In a maze of letters, figures, and proofs, you began to explain. To your horror you discovered you had somehow gotten the right answer by using the wrong formula. As the class tittered and the teacher scratched his head you showed that blushing is NOT a lost art after all.

Enthusiasm Dangerous

If you took an art course you probably got carried away with enthusiasm. As you were painting your great masterpiece and talking at the same time, you may have found yourself dabbing your neighbor as well as the paper. This is not conducive to good neighbor relations.

Maybe you've cut a class, only to meet the instructor in the hall. Suddenly you come to the realization that you must have been born under the wrong star or an ill-tempered sprite is taking out his moods on you.

Vocal Cords Paralyzed

How about the time you had to sight sing for the first time in Music 110 and you were so nervous that when you were called upon you opened your mouth and nothing came out, or the time when you made your first speech in Speech 101 and your knees knocked so hard your teeth rattled.

If you have, in any class, raised your hand to contribute some highly intelligent and intellectual comment to a discussion, and used a multi-syllable word only to find that it didn't mean what you thought it meant, you know all about embarrassment.

Start Participated

If you have belonged to a musical group you may have been the over-anxious one that anticipated the director's signal to start before he made it, and as a result came in too soon. Your lone voice could be heard above the hushed expectancy and more than likely it was much too loud or much too flat.

When you studied the endocrine system in your science course you may have written "prostrate gland" instead of "prostate gland" on your exam. This is certain to evoke the wrath of your instructor.

Oh! embarrassment of embarrassment, you may have spilled coffee (or something equally as staining) on your history professor when your arm got knocked in the cafeteria bread line. Now you can't laugh even a little weakly about it—he still has a grade to give you!

Some Slick, A Stone And A Batch of Smelt: A Summer Soliloquy

by Jeanne H. Fitzgerald

Well, here I am, freed from bondage. O-boy. Two glorious months with no job, no school, no anything. Two months to relax on the golden sands under electric blue skies and warm sun. Stretched out on my blanket here at the beach, a-h-h. . .

I'm lying on a pebble.

I can feel it digging in my uncalloused, winterized spare tire. H-m-m. Maybe if I lift my knee and, yes, elevate my left hip about 14½ degrees keeping my arm stretched over my ear. Y-e-s-s, now I'm comfy. Sort of.

Zazz. Zazz.

A fly. Not just ordinary every day type fly, but a ravenous long-fasting beach fly. Think I'll pretend I don't see him. Animals can sense when you afraid of them and if I simply act oblivious of the fact . . .

Munch.

He got me. Oh well, I'll just lie back and forget him. He didn't eat very much.

Yow! That d—n pebble!

I need some sustenance after that ordeal. My this almost tastes like, in fact, I think it's—yes, it is all right—a Sea and Ski sandwich!

Time for a dip.

Ah, the lake, the cool, refreshing lake. Really, a few ice-cream wrappers, and sticks and paper cups shouldn't bother a . . . blind swimmer.

And that oil there, all over the water, it should help an awful lot in preventing sunburn.

Wonder what those smelt died of?

I'd better see what time it is; I've been here for hours and I don't want to overdo it the first day. Here's the band of my watch. I guess it got buried in the sand. The watch my parents gave me. One hundred and fifty dollar watch, buried in the sand.

It's still working and I've been here . . . 23 minutes!

I wonder if Walgreen's is still hiring for the summer.

by Stephen J. Teller

In this, the last issue of TEMPO, we will mention briefly some of the excellent books that you can buy in paperback editions, for two dollars or less.

The Natural History of Nonsense by Bergen Evans. This is a very amusing, and at the same time a very thought provoking iconoclastic book. It deftly explodes some of the myths that are part of every person's folklore. It will explode some of yours.

Parzival by Wolfram Von Eschenback. This is one of the great writings of the middle ages. Ranking with The Divine Comedy and the The Nibelungenlied, it has long been neglected.

The White Goddess by Robert Graves is one of the most difficult books you could desire to read. It is a masterly study of the "grammar of poetic myth." It carefully analyzes several medieval Welsh poems, extracts, alphabets, riddles and clues for inter-relationships between mythologies from them, and gives conclusions about the Name of God, the cult of the triple goddess and many other mystic things.

The Lives of the Twelve Caesars by Suetonius. This is a fascinating anecdotal history of Julius Caesar and his successors, the first eleven emperors of Rome. Suetonius is all inclusive in his biographies. He knows; he tells all. Therefore many of his anecdotes are rather scurrilous and amusing.

Final Fever

by Jeanne Fitzgerald

I'm burning my stock
Of new midnight oil.
I work 'round the clock
In long delayed toil.

I've played and laughed
The semester through
And now I'm just daft
I've so much to do

Exams grow nearer
With each passing day.
Minutes are dearer
I'm beginning to pray.

Oh, next term I'll change
I'll study, I know. . .
Now isn't that strange?
My words—six months ago.

Simutis Receives Doctorate in Canada

Leonard J. Simutis, assistant professor of music at CTC and director of the Choir, received a doctor of philosophy degree from the school of psychology and education at the University of Ottawa, on Sunday, May 28, in Ottawa, Ontario, Canada.

Leonard J. Simutis

Dr. Simutis wrote his thesis on the following subject: "James Lockhart Mursell as Music Educator" and it dealt with the psychological, educational and musical education aspect of Mursell's thinking.

Simutis came to the school in March, 1951, and has been director of the Choir ever since that time. Prior to coming here he taught at De La Salle high school, Fenwick high school in Oak Park, and at De Paul University.

He received his Bachelor's and Master's degrees from De Paul, stressing three fields of graduate study—musicology, composition and music education. He holds his Master's degree in music education and has completed Master's degree work in the other two fields.

In addition to his teaching career, Simutis has been active in the field of music composition. His works include a string quartet, string trio, serenade for orchestra, sonata for piano, two cantatas for soloist choir and piano, songs for chorus and songs for solo voices, and a ½ hour ballet which has had 17 performances in the Chicago area, four of them by the Chicago Ballet Guild at the Eighth Street theatre.

Now that he has completed work on his Doctor's degree, Simutis intends to return to the field of musical composition. He also plans to do extensive writings for periodicals.

Newman Club Holds Annual Spring Dance

The Newman Club of Chicago Teachers College is presenting its annual spring dance, the Chaotic Cotillion II, which will be semi-formal. The dance will be held on Friday, June 16, at the Silver Lake Country club, located at 147th and 82nd avenues in Orland Park.

George Miller and the Continentals will provide the music for the dance. The bids are priced at $4.00 and they are available from Alice or Eileen O'Malley in locker 1-1.

Plans to make the evening "chaotic" include the crowing of a king and some mixed-up mixers. The Newman Club cordially invites all CTC students to attend this dance.

Present Last Of Civil War Assemblies

The last in a series of three Civil War Commemorative assemblies took place Monday, May 22, at 1:00 in the Auditorium. The program, jointly sponsored by the music department, PE department, and Social Science Club, was entitled Music and Dance of the Civil War Days.

Featured on the program were Miss Janice Sullivan, lyric soprano, and Mr. Fred J. Anderson, balladeer and folk song stylist. Each sang two songs reminiscent of the Civil War period.

Following their renditions, a few words on the Civil War were spoken by Dean Cook.

An entertaining square dance with audience participation and a minuet were then presented by members of the PE curriculum.

Concluding the program was the Girls Glee Club under the direction of Dr. Sylvan D. Ward. They sang five "Songs from the North and South".

A narrative written by Dr. Joseph Chada and delivered by Miss Joan Bransfield and Mr. Marc Coine was interspersed through the entire program.

Programs with patriotic theme were designed by Miss Judy Eisenbrandt.

Vets Administration Representatives Visit IA Seminars

Representatives of the Veterans Administration visited the Industrial Arts department on Wednesday, May 17, 1961, to look for young men interested in working for the VA in the capacity of manual arts rehabilitation therapists around the country.

W. J. Zillmer, rehabilitation coordinator and Elden Flanagan, director of personnel of the VA, talked to members of Frank Moore's industrial arts seminar class about the openings in the field of manual arts rehabilitation.

There are 180 hospitals throughout the country and all are in need of therapists in areas such as metalworking, woodworking, electricity, graphic and applied arts, and agriculture. Two of these hospitals are here in the Chicago area—Downey and Hines.

The openings are available to graduates of a four-year college course with a major in industrial arts teacher education. The course must have included or been supplemented by at least 12 semester hours in the field of education.

The seminar class visited the V.A. Regional office, 333 E. Huron St., May 24.

SC Committee Splits Most Active Senior Award

Frances Czerwinski and Carol Ann Haller this semester will share the title "Most Active senior."

According to Gayle Cornish, a member of the committee and president-elect of SC, the two winners had such closely comparable activities records that it was hard to make a choice.

Close runners-up for the title were August Amarino, Carol McGreal, and Carol Nelson. Their active careers at Chicago Teachers College won them honorable mention in the judging.

The title of "most active" is based primarily on the activities in which the graduating senior took part. Every graduate is required to fill out a form listing all the activities in which he took part. From these forms the committee chooses the five or six students who might be able to qualify for the award. From the five or six possible winners one or, in this case, two seniors are to fill the position which the Student council considers equal to the title it formerly had of "outstanding senior."

The title is not comparable to the award to the outstanding senior presented for the first time at this year's honors convocation. The outstanding senior award is based more on scholarship than activities and the winner is decided by faculty rather than by a student committee of the SC.

But activities are still the main criteria. Miss Czerwinski had a very full record. She was in Mu Beta Phi, the honorary science society, since her third semester; she was a member of TEMPO for three semesters, serving two of them as co-news editor; she is a member of Kappa Delta Pi, national honor society in education and as such served as secretary, vice-president and president, she was also a member of Student Council and served as secretary for one semester.

Miss Czerwinski attended Camp Workshop in 1959 and returned in 1960 as a member of the steering committee. Last year she served as representative of KDP at their national convention. She also attended the Associated Press convention in New York in 1959, as a member of TEMPO.

Miss Czerwinski's awards are numerous. They include her Student Council service pin, TEMPO service pin, and this semester she received honorable mention as outstanding senior at the Honors Convocation.

In her first year Miss Haller was elected President of her class in her freshman year. She held that office in her second semester also. As a sophomore, Miss Haller was vice-president of the Choir, secretary of Theatre Workshop, delegate to Student Council, and a member of the Homecoming Committee. In the latter half of her second year she became the sports editor of TEMPO, and president of TW. Miss Haller's junior year found her as acting editor of EMBLEM, managing editor of TEMPO, secretary of EPT, industrial arts fraternity, and on the Fall Frolic committee. As a senior she became editor-in-chief of TEMPO as well as being on the Homecoming Committee and court.

Miss Haller's list of awards and honors include an Epsilon Pi Tau key, a TEMPO pin, the TEMPO editor's key, an SC pin, a TW pin, and a position on the Dean's List in her sixth semester.

She was also a Student Aide for three semesters and a Camp Workshop Delegate for three semesters.

Among the runners up an abundance of activity and hard work is to be observed, also.

August M. Amarino, a member of the teaching major in math, was on Student Council for several semesters and president of it in his sixth and seventh semesters. He was class president in his fifth semester, and was a member of Choir at the same time. The many committees and clubs in which Mr. Amarino participated are: Kappa Mu Epsilon, Kappa Delta Pi; Camp Workshop, Theatre Workshop, TEMPO, Homecoming Committee, Pep Assembly, Fall Frolic, the United Nation's Conference, Freshman Orientation, and the Most Active Senior nominee.

Miss Carol McGreal, a member of the KGP Curriculum, was elected vice president of her class in her first semester and became president in her second semester. Miss McGreal's other activities include Student Council delegate, membership in the Honorary Bi. Sci., membership in the Association of Childhood Education for eight semesters during which she held the office of president for the seventh and eighth semesters. Miss McGreal is also a member of Kappa Delta Pi and has held the offices of vice president and president in the Newman Club.

Last but not least of the runners up is Miss Carol Nelson. Miss Nelson has been an active member of the W.A.A. choir, Phi Alpha, Kappa Delta Pi, and in her class. Miss Nelson was honored by her class by being elected secretary of her class during her first and third years at C.T.C. As a member of the Women's Athletic Association she served her fifth semester as president. Her other accomplishments include a Scholastic Key in Music, received at the 1960 Honors Convocation, and a W.A.A. letter.

W.A.A. Elects Officers; Holds Annual Banquet

The Women's Athletic Association of CTC held a meeting for the purpose of electing officers Monday, June 5.

Adrian Zions was elected president. The following were also elected: Maureen Appell, vice-president; Barbara Boersma, secretary; Lorraine Matthys, treasurer; and Diane Markos, Student Council representative.

Yesterday at the banquet held at Younkers Restaurant at 6:00 p.m. the officers were installed, and recommendation and activities awards were given out.

Dorothy Kozeluh, sponsor of W.A.A., remarked that the turn out at the banquet was very good. She invites all CTC women to come to next semester's meeting and join in the activities of the W.A.A.

Expert Tells Students Where To Get Off!

Having been at CTC for one-and-a-half semesters, I consider my self an expert on what's going on around the building. I am now going to share some of the things I've learned and give you readers information that will never be found in the school catalog.

I feel it my duty to inform those who don't know as much as I that there are instructors who use what they call the "casual approach to teaching." In other words that the course with them will be a do-it-yourself project for the whole semester. You are to be continually on the alert for such instructors.

You are herein informed that the operation entitled "Sneaking and Eating Potato Chips" will not be tolerated in the library. It seems that the crackling sound of the potato chips tends to shatter the sensitive nerves of the librarians who are not yet accustomed to such loud noises. This was an unpaid announcement on behalf of the library and the librarians.

Be Courteous

I have been informed that we, the students have not been showing the proper courtesy to the men installing the sprinklers. It is very unfair to them when we trip over their equipment or disturb them by bumping their ladders as we walk under them. Let's all pull together and be nice to these men. After all they're doing a public service by keeping us awake with all the banging and hammering.

It has been called to my attention that many students feel they aren't

Final Time Rhyme

by Jeanne Fitzgerald

My nails are stubby
My nerves are frayed too.
My tired lids grown chubby
And circled with blue.

My dear NoDoz bottle
Depleted there lies.
Guess black coffee, hot'll
Open my eyes.

Hold Tryouts June 9, 2 P.M. For CWGC

There will be a few openings for sopranos, second sopranos and altos in the College Women's Glee Club for the fall semester. All interested singers, whether applying for credit or no credit should come for an audition on Friday, June 9, at 2 p.m., in 301C (Recital hall).

The organization was founded last spring by Sylvan D. Ward, chairman of the music department. One of the ultimate purposes of the glee club is to tour the schools in concert in order to promote interest in the college among prospective students.

Recently the Women's Glee Club performed at the Social Science Club assembly in commemoration of the Civil War Centennial, where they sang some of the traditional songs of the period.

Colonels Philosophy; Record Disclosed

by Douglas DeGregorio

The Colonels played their final game of the season last week when they edged out a rugged alumni squad 15-19. This win rounded off the season's won-lost record to six and nine.

The teams record is not actually so bad as it might seem. The team had only a few players returning from last season and had to be built almost from scratch.

First Attempt

It was a feeling out season not only for the team but for Coach Salario, since he was making his initial attempt at coaching baseball.

His main piece of advice to the players throughout the year was to play each game as if it meant a championship and each inning as if it were a new ball game.

Wins Accounted For

This philosophy, coupled with the teams consistently high spirits accounted for most of the Colonel's wins. The Colonels refuse to become dejected. Even after a string of five losses they bounced back to even a double header from the University of Chicago.

Next year, when the players return with some experience under their belts, they're sure to have a winning season.

CTC Colonels Boast Ball — Playing 200

by Douglas DeGregorio

In what department of CTC would you find the following: frog, crow, toad? If you answer the science department, you are wrong; it's the men's PE department, that claims them.

Frog, crow, and toad are nicknames for members of the CTC baseball team. "Frog" is catcher Jerry Vaver, "Crow" is outfielder Bill McCarthy, and Jim Porzel answers to "Toad."

The team's menagerie does not stop here. They have "Penguin" who is sometimes known as Greg Lopatka, a hard-hitting third baseman from the Sabin campus. They have Bill "Fawn" Casey, Joe "Fox" Grabowski, and Jack "Horse" Feldman.

The Colonels boast a pair of moose (or is it meese?), outfielders Gus Zmania and pitcher Bill Grage. Managing the squad is the "Beaver," better known as Ron Beavers.

Please don't let this ball-playing zoo frighten you from attending its performances next season; the only persons who have ever been bitten are the opposing pitchers!
