Chicago, Illinois, April 6, 1977-----Work is scheduled to begin April 18 on an access road on the campus of Northeastern Illinois University. The road will extend from Foster avenue on the south to Bryn Mawr avenue on the north along the western edge of the campus providing direct access to the campus parking lots from Foster avenue.

According to Melvin Skvarla, campus planning officer, it is hoped that the road will allow university traffic to remain off the one-way residential streets and encourage more parking in the university lots.

Chicago, Illinois, April 18, 1977-----The Commuter Center Activities Board (CCAB) of Northeastern Illinois University has found an unique way to provide entertainment, give young musicians a break, and maybe uncover a winner all in one fell swoop.

Come June, aspiring talent trying to break into the college market will entertain the students on the university campus at Bryn Mawr and St. Louis avenues while auditioning for concert committees of Northeastern and other colleges and universities in the area.

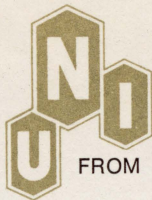

Although the auditioners are unpaid, there is the chance that they will be liked and hired for further appearances at one university or another.

The Second Annual Summer Concert Auditions are in the planning now. Aspiring performers can call CCAB, 583-4050, extension 505, during the week of May 2 to make the date.

Chicago, Illinois, April 20, 1977-----Northeastern Illinois University, Bryn iawr at St. Louis Ave., is welcoming its new president, Dr. Ronald Williams, with a varied collection of public events preceding the actual inauguration ceremony, 8 p. m., May 12.

All manner of university related events are scheduled. A faculty art exhibit opens at the university gallery, 3307 Bryn Mawr Ave., with a public reception, 4 p. m. - 7 p. m., May 5. At the Archi Center, 111 South Dearborn, an art department photographic exhibit entitled "Recycled Chicago" opens May 4.

The Saturday preceding the inauguration, May 7, the campus will be open to visitors all day with an academic fair, open dance rehearsals, tours of the campus and outlying field centers, a festival of women's films, and an alumni reception for President Williams.

The Kellogg Faculty Fellowship Conference will be in session on the campus, May 9 and 10, with speakers and workshops exploring the conference theme, "Toward the Urban University." This is the second year that the Kellogg Foundation has provided a grant to the university to instruct certain faculty members, called Kellogg Fellows, in new and non-traditional ways of teaching. Keynote speaker will be Peter Szanton, former head of Rand Corporation, now with the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

Other symposia throughout the week will take up such topics as new directions and alternatives in urban education, building a higher education network for Chicago, the role of the urban academic library in the community, school desegregation, the politics of creating the urban university, and how to achieve excellence at Northeastern.

Dr. Allen Anderson, piano, and Dr. Ronald Combs, baritone, give a faculty recital, 8 p. m., May 10, and the New Art String Ensemble gives a concert, May 12, at a time yet to be announced. The Spanish club is sponsoring a play, "La Fiacca," by the Spanish Theatre Repertory Company, 1 p. m., May 10, in the university auditorium. The comedy of Richardo Talesnik, an Argentine playwright, will be performed in Spanish. Two ancillary dance groups at Northeastern, the ARVE Connection and the Ensemble Espanol, present a program which includes works created for the occasion, 8 p. m., May 11.

Howard Simons, managing editor of the Washington (D. C.) Post, will be the speaker at the culminating event, the inauguration.

Chicago, Illinois, April 21, 1977-----Visitors from Tanzania, Sweden, Bahrain, the Netherlands Antilles, Bangladesh, and Germany will be coming to Chicago, April 29, to study at Northeastern Illinois University and, as an integral part of their education, live with American families in the area.

Two Evanston families will be hosts to members of the group. Dr. and Mrs. Gary Bevington, 1310 Main St., will entertain Irmgard Ruttner from Austria. Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Dincin, 1202 Main St., will have Nelson Kibathi from Kenya as their guest.

The foreign visitors are here as a part of a larger group of social workers, youth leaders, and special educators who arrive in New York City, April 25, under the auspices of the Council of International Programs for Youth Leaders and Social Workers (CIP), and then disperse to various affiliates of the program throughout the country to study, work, and generally absorb the--to them--foreign culture of the United States. Each foreign visitor will stay at five different host families before they all assemble for a farewell banquet in Washington, D. C., August 16.

CIP is a private organization which provides opportunities for professional and cultural exchanges on an international level among those engaged in social work, youth work, social work-related and special education with the goal of making a tangible contribution toward international understanding. The U. S. Department of State,

Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs provides about 30 percent of CIP's funds. The local programs are financed from local funds in each community or university affiliated with the program. This is the second year Northeastern Illinois University has been an affiliate.

Participants at Northeastern, after a five-week orientation program at the university, will spend 10 weeks in field work with local agencies of their particular areas of interest. The Bevingtons' guest, Irmgard Ruttner, will be working with the Lutheran Welfare Services of Illinois, 4840 West Byron St., Chicago. The Dincins' guest, Nelson Kibathi, will work at "Uptown Center" Hull House, 4520 North Beacon St., Chicago.

###

Note: The participants will meet their host families, 4 p. m., April 29, in the first floor lobby of the commuter center on the campus, Bryn Mawr at St. Louis Ave., should you care to send a reporter and/or photographer.

MONEY MAKES MONEY for Vern Hendricks, manager of The Book Nook. Inspired by the "new two," he simulated the reverse side of a two dollar bill, enlarged it, inserted copy in the portrait area and used it as a coupon to promote calculator sales. For his idea, he was awarded a cash prize by The College Store Journal in its Pick/Promote/Profit competition. Here President Ronald Williams makes the formal presentation to Hendricks, right, while Cliff Harralson, director of the commuter center, displays the edition of the journal in which Hendricks' idea was published.

Chicago, Illinois, May 4, 1977----Howard Simons, managing editor of the Washington Post, will be principle speaker when Dr. Ronald Williams, Wilmette, is formally inaugurated as president of Northeastern Illinois University, 8 p. m., May 12, in the university auditorium on the campus, Bryn Mawr at St. Louis Ave. Simons, who was the supervisor of Woodward and Bernstein while they were investigating the Watergate affair, will speak on "Freedom of the Press and Freedom of the University." Considering the current airing of the Frost interviews with former President Nixon, covering this event might prove fruitful.

The new President Williams comes to Northeastern from Federal City College, Washington, D. C., where he was provost and vice president for academic affairs. He received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio, and his doctorate from Ohio State University. His areas of concentration were speech and hearing, speech pathology, phonetics, and psycholinguistics.

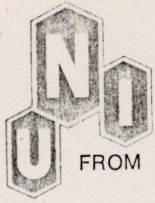

Dr. Williams' publications range from the professional dealing with speech and hearing, Black English, and language differences among segments of the society to short stories and a play.

In the week preceding the inauguration, many and varied events are scheduled on the campus beginning with a university open house, May 7.

IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Chicago, Illinois, June 9, 1977.....Northeastern Illinois University announces a new program commencing September, 1977, to train teachers at the Masters degree level to work with special education pre-school children: The program is funded in part by a Federal Program Assistance Grant, U. S. Office of Education and is designed to prepare teachers to identify, diagnose and teach young handicapped children.

If accepted for admission by the Graduate College, the trainees can earn a masters degree in Special Education in one of three areas: Mental Retardation, Learning Disabilities, or Behavioral Disorders. It is possible to earn certification in more than one area. The program fulfills the present State of Illinois requirements in Early Childhood Special Education.

Application for admission to the Master's degree program must be made through the Graduate College.

There is a growing concern throughout the country in the identification and teaching of young handicapped children. This development has resulted in an expanding need for trained personnel in the area of Special Education for pre-school children. Such personnel are needed in:

- * Child Find Projects
- * First Chance Network
- * Headstart (Where ten percent served are to be handicapped)
- * Early and periodic screening, diagnosis and treatment (EPSDT) programs
- * Local school districts
- * Nursery schools
- * Day care centers
- * Infant stimulation programs
- * Regional service areas
- * Community agencies

Those who completed last year's project are applying for positions as head teachers or directors in group care settings, members of multi-disciplinary teams serving pre-school exceptional children, teachers of the severely emotionally disturbed, and staff members with young children and their families.

Additional information may be obtained from Dr. Carol Mardell or Dr. Janet Lerner, Northeastern Illinois University, 583-4050.
