

Liberal Arts Education: Its Continuing Importance

Cris Tofollo, Justice Studies and International Program

Abstract: As part of the College of Arts and Sciences celebrating its 50th anniversary, this presentation will explain how and why liberal arts education remains extremely relevant today, even as new forces are drastically reshaping the landscape of higher education globally, and the country is experiencing transformations in its social, cultural, political and technological systems.