Jackson dodges impeachment bullet

By Tom Ligay

At the August 6th meeting of the Student Senate, a motion was made by Rich Geiger to hold an impeachment hearing for student body President Julius Jackson on charges of misconduct, misrepresentation, and dereliction of duties.

Among the specific charges were failure to attend freshman orientation, failure to keep posted office hours, scheduling classes conflicting with senate meeting times, giving awards and making an appointment to a Board of Governors (BOG) ad hoc committee without the knowledge or consent of the senate, failure to act on the wishes of the senate by refraining from selling taffy apples, and claiming to represent the senate, without the senate's knowledge, in a memo to Provost Barbara Hursh regarding the change in the activity hour.

Jackson was not present at the meeting as the senate voted 19 for, zero against with one abstention in favor of holding an impeachment hearing. The hearing was set for Sept. 10.

On Sept. 10, the meeting room was full of Jackson supporters, but Jackson himself did not show up. The anti-Jackson forces were short of the 18 votes needed for impeachment and felt business could not be conducted with the large group of spectators in the room, and senators began to leave before the meeting began. Vice-President Sharil Yonan called the meeting to order, roll was taken, quorum was not reached and the meeting was ended.

"These accusations are ridiculous," Jackson responded. "There are a small group of senators, including my rival for this office in the last election that want to get rid of me. These charges have no basis in fact."

These charges include making the appointment of David Aronin to the Search and Screen Committee for the Dean of LAS and the BOG ad hoc committee on Assessment and Retention Research which was made without informing the senate.

Jackson stated that he, as President, didn't need senate approval on this "particular" appointment. The senate contends that the President can only nominate, it is the reserved right of the full senate to appoint.

Another charge, the sale of Taffy Apples, was "a venture he took on his own," claims Rich Geiger. "The sales weren't approved by the Senate....and as a result of the non-academic misconduct, blemishing the reputation of the Senate, and in a memo to Walter Williams he said he's going to keep on selling against the wishes of the Senate."

Along with these official charges presented by Rich Geiger, there are accusations coming from Josie Martinez, Rocio Medina, and Magdalena Salazar that Jackson fired them from their positions as secretaries in the Student Government Office, because they would not back Edna Hunt as BOG representative. Jackson maintains that Martinez, Medina, and Salazar were terminated for poor work performance.

When asked about his absences Jackson claimed his work schedule kept him from attending the Senate meetings, "I have to earn a living," Jackson said. On his missing the September 10th meeting, Jackson said he couldn't make it because he was changing his schedule at the time.

When asked about what he planned to do next, Rich Geiger commented, "Julius has misinformed and acted without the Senate at every turn, he's neglected his duties, and he has to be removed. The Student Constitution calls for dismissal if an officer misses five meetings in a term. Tonight was his fifth missed meeting. How can you expect a man who won't show up at his impeachment hearing to show up at a regular Senate meeting?" Geiger added.

Something new for new students

New student week begins today

By Mike Solarte

The first days of class are behind you and you've gone cover to cover of your New Student Issue.

So what's next?

New Student Week, that's what. This week, Northeastern will be hosting its New Student Week. On tap for the newest arrivals to campus are a series of workshops, a reception, and an "All Nighter."

Workshops that are scheduled for New Student Week are:

Tuesday Sept. 18

"Victimology 101-Public Safety and You"-10 a.m. in CC-216

"Get Involved" (in Student Activities) -11 a.m. in CC-218

SCRATCH PAD

opinion by Mike Solarte

Going to the hoop....

Lots to talk about and little time to do it. First, the impeachment proceedings that didn't occur. It is in my own opinion that Julius Jackson be impeached for the simple reason of his blatant disregard for Senate proceedings. His failure to appear at senate meetings, especially the meeting that most likely could have booted him out of office, is reason enough.

Jackson is supposed to represent the student body on this campus. He fails to show up for meetings, so who is to say he will show up when it comes time to represent the students?

Let me set straight, for the record, that he did try and represent the students when he gave his input to Provost Hursh about the Activity Hour change. This was done, however, without the knowledge or consent of the student senate.

The way I see it is this; if the President of the United States needs the approval of Congress before we can go to war, then Jackson needs the approval of Student Senate before he speaks on behalf of the student body. Enough said.

Second, the parking lot fiasco. Many people have been complaining about the unfinished parking lots. According to Bill Curtin in an open letter to the community, the parking lots were not finished because of a "combination of several days of continuous rain during the weeks August 13 and August 20 and less than timely performance of one of the subcontractors who is on the "critical path" on the project."

As I was parking last week, I rolled down the window and asked one of the construction workers, "how much longer until you finish?"

The reply, "I don't know."

Well, the rain is the work of Mother Nature, but the "less than timely performance" is something the university may confront. I offer this suggestion; "less than timely payment."

Finally, New Student Week. The Office of the Dean of Students has put together an assortment of workshops and gatherings welcoming new students (i.e. freshmen, transfer, and returning adults). These programs are there to be utilized and admission is free to all events.

This new idea is a good one to help out the new students. Barbara Bales deserves a pat on the back for this one, but one question. Where were you when I was a freshman???

Commentary

Jackson's in our sadddle

A man who: never holds office hours, refuses to attend meetings, shows up late at his own impeachment (evidently doesn't know how to use a phone), acts in violation of the constitution and laughs when anyone points this out, will sign anything for anybody and foams at the mouth occasionally, then fires all his secretaries for racial grounds and has to send out hand written memo's is the lame excuse that we as students are saddled with as a Student Senate president.

Along with a few other Senators, I brought a bill of impeachment against Julius Jackson for among other things; appointing his friends to University committees when actually only the Senate as a whole can appoint anyone; failing to attend Senate meetings (evidently scheduled a class at the same time); giving Senate excellence awards to students, one of whom was serving probation for punching a Professor; and withholding information from the Senate. The only issue I saw him move on was when his stipend for the office of President was reduced.

My reasoning for the impeachment move was that if Senate acted to clean its own house, maybe the Administration would have greater respect for the students voice in campus affairs. I will wait to see if this happens, as it appears the removal process has failed, and Julius will retain his Presidency, and that positions ability to deny representation to the students. The administration doesn't have to sneak around and plot behind students backs, like so many have suggested, they just give all their plans to Julius, and nothing ever comes of them, not one Senator will ever see them again, and when students do get around to complaining, it is too late. Having fun parking this year?

I have been accused of making a personal attack on Julius Jackson, and I have in that when the facts are assembled and presented it is an attack, and it is personal because the person and personality of Julius Jackson is causing many problems.

What has student government on this campus meant to you? Honestly, what has the Senate or the BOG representative done since taking office? There has been a lot of mouth running about how bad things are, yet no solutions are ever offered.

Robinson awarded fellowship

Dr. Edward Robinson, professor of curriculum and instruction in the College of Education at Northeastern has been selected to participate in the Board of Governors (BOG) Affirmative Action Administrative Fellow Program.

During the academic year 1990-91, Robinson will complete his fellowship at Western Illinois University at Macomb, working with Western's president, Dr. Ralph H. Wagoner. Robinson is one of six Administrative Fellowship will spend the year with mentors at either the BOG Chancellor's Office in Springfield or at one of the five BOG universities, including Northeastern, Western Illinois, Eastern Illinois, Chicago State and Governors State Universities.

The program, in its third year, is aimed at expanding the pool of minority and female candidates for top level positions in higher education. To be eligible, applicants must be full-time faculty, administrative, or professional staff at a BOG university with at least three years experience.

Robinson, who has been on the faculty in the Northeastern College of Education since 1981, is renowned for his expertise in secondary education. He has pioneered in teaching secondary school teachers a variety of drama techniques, such as improvisational theatre and role-playing that aid learning. With substantial theatre background, Robinson has written widely on the history of black theatre and has been a director and drama consultant to several Chicago-area high schools.

He has also served as a consultant to a number of educational commissions and has received several honors and awards, including the Ford Foundation Fellowship and the Robert Moton Fellowship for Independent Studies.

Robinson hold the Ph.D. in English Education from Northwestern University, the MAT in English from the University of Chicago and the B.A. from University in Washington, D.C.

Bailey appointed to assistant provost post

Dr. Jessica Bailey has been appointed assistant provost of Northeastern. She will be working with curriculum review and development, specializing in academic planning and policy.

Bailey comes to Northeastern from Portland Community College, Portland, Oregon, where she served as executive dean.

She recently completed post-doctoral study as a Bush Fellow at Harvard University's Kennedy School of Government. Along with 60 hand-picked leaders from the United States and other countries, she participated in intensive training in strategic management and public policy analysis.

Why did she come the Northeastern? Dr. Bailey says, "When I learned about the faculty and their willingness to be innovative and participate in community and student issues, I knew I wanted to be here. At Northeastern they are dealing successfully with a diverse student population. This is a vibrant, challenging environment."

She hold the Ph.D. in educational administration from the University of Minnesota; M.Sc. degree in educational psychology, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee; B.A. from Lakeland College and a Diploma from the University of Paris (Sorbonne).

Intramural and recreation fees misused

By Tom Ligay

Student senator Rich Geiger has revealed documents to the independent that show that money from the Intramural and Recreation fund is being spent on equipment and expenses for the NCAA sports program.

The Intramural and Recreation fund is a $12.00 fee in the list of fees that students must pay along with their tuition. It's meant to fund the Intramural and Recreation program which allows students and faculty to participate in team and individual sports other than the main sports program at Northeastern. Faculty and staff are charged $50.00 a semester to use the facilities.

The Intramural and Recreation fund, comprised of student fees, is to be used for programs for the students. In FY90, the Intramural and Recreation fund held $218,000. A total of $101,932 or 46.6% was spent on faculty salaries. Athletic department faculty are the only faculty members who draw salaries from student fees. Students are also required to pay a $16.00 Athletic fee, which is where Athletic faculty salaries and equipment purchases for Northeastern's intercollegiate teams should come from.

The documents that were given to the independent show that on numerous occasions, equipment purchases have been made with Intramural & Recreation fee money. This equipment was solely for the intercollegiate teams. These documents include purchase orders to be billed to the Intramural & Recreation account and memos ordering the transfer of bills from the intercollegiate Athletic Administration account to the Intramural and Recreation account.

The purchases include:

- 1 Post anchors for batting tunnels.
- 2 60 sport bags-total $925.00
- 3 9 sweatshirts & 10 sweaters-total $600.00
- 4 54 award jackets, 48 award blankets, 250 certificates total-$2,131.25
- 5 Coaches shirts and sweaters total-$3,353.77

The last two purchases were originally billed to the Intercollegiate Athletic Administration fund, then suddenly transferred to the Intramural and Recreation fund. All of these items were purchased for the intercollegiate teams. Students aren't allowed to use the batting tunnels, the sport bags were given to the athletes to carry their equipment in when they travel. As for the sweatsuits, sweaters, award jackets, blankets and certificates, no one is sure who they were purchased for. When asked, Senator Geiger replied, "It was rumored the sweaters and sweatsuits were for the basketball team. When I asked Dr. (Dennis) Keihn (Director of Athletics/Intramural and Recreation), he could show me no documentation to prove otherwise. What were the awards for? I don't know. No one would tell me."

The most interesting purchase of all is the $3,353.77 of "coaches shirts and sweaters." Geiger said, "When I asked Keihn about this purchase, he told me that it was purchased through the Intramural and Recreation by mistake and that the money would be replaced from the IAA fund. Up to now, I haven't seen any documentation for a replacement of the funds."

Along with these purchases, Intramural and recreation fees were used to reimburse possible candidates for their expenses in a search and screen for a head coach for the women's basketball team. The amount reimbursed was $1,330.19. This expense should not have come out of the Intramural and Recreation fund.

When asked what prompted this investigation, Geiger replied, "I had heard rumors that student fees were being spent towards the athletic programs. When I checked the budget for the Intramural and Recreation department, I discovered a companies names a few times so I decide to pull their purchase orders. No one was too willing to help me. I had to file under the Freedom of Information Act with Marti Sladek (University Relations) to get some of the purchase orders released to me."

Along with the confusing use of Intramural and Recreation money, there is also the unexplained transfer of $4,000 in FY89 and $9,000 in FY90 into the Exercise Science (HPL) account.

"Dr. Keihn told me it was to cover emergency health care provided by HPL in the P.E. Building," Geiger said, "but I haven't seen any documents accounting for these costs."

The Intramural and Recreation handbook for 1990 states that if anyone is injured in the P.E. Building, that the "nurse in Health Service will be called."

Geiger, who chairs the Fees and Allocations Committee brought his suspicions to the Senate and on June 11th, a resolution was passed asking President Lamb to authorize an audit of the Intramural and Recreation fund. Lamb never responded.

"I sent a memo on July 12th asking him for a response to our motion. He hasn't answered to that one either," Geiger said.

Along with memos to faculty, Geiger has sent letters to state agencies asking them to step in and see what they could do. The office of the Auditor General offered little hope, stating that the next compliance wasn't going to take place until 1991, although a financial statement audit will be done this year.

"A fund of student fees without student oversight is bound to be abused by an administration that cares less for the student body than its NCAA status. What we know now may only be the tip of the iceberg," Geiger said.

Dr. Keihn was unavailable for comment.

Futures trader to begin eight week seminar program

Starting Thursday, Oct. 4 at 4 p.m. and continuing for eight successive Thursdays, Northeastern will present "Charting for Commodities" with nationally known futures trader Sid Kosann and Dr. Nauzer Balsara, associate professor in the Finance Department of Northeastern's College of Business and Management. All seminars will be held on campus.

The eight-week program will cover technical analysis, charting, risk-reward analysis, and money management. This seminar series the first of its kind to integrate charting techniques with money management.

Kosann, who has been a trader and futures analyst for 45 years, will lead six of the eight seminars. He is frequently consulted by leading brokerage houses and individual traders, and his current trade fund exceeds 50 million dollars. Balsara, who will conduct two sessions, is a former analyst with a leading brokerage house and has a great deal of experience in charting and money management. His latest book "Money Management" will be published this fall by John Wiley and Company.

The cost for the eight meetings is $300. For more information, call Dr. Balsara at Northeastern at (312) 583-4050, extension 2654 or Northeastern's Business Service Bureau: (312) 794-2897.

A lot of campus rapes start here.

Whenever there's drinking or drugs, things can get out of hand. So it's no surprise that many campus rapes involve alcohol. But you should know that under any circumstances, sex without the other person's consent is considered rape. A felony, punishable by prison. And drinking is no excuse. That's why, when you party, it's good to know what your limits are. You see, a little sobering thought now can save you from a big problem later.

First days of class may cause health problems

By Betty Farrell Doty & Nicole A. Nance

Wednesday was 2-year-old Rebecca's first day at preschool. Leslie and Joseph Buckalew of Salinas, Calif., had prepared her in all the right ways for the new experience. She knew where her parents worked. She'd visited the preschool. Her big sister Brittany, 3 and one half, would be with her. Everything was going great. Rebecca walked her mother to the door. Then came the final moment of parting.

"Don't go, don't go, don't leave me, Mommy," cried Rebecca, bursting into heartbroken tears.

Child development experts call it "separation anxiety." It strikes on the first day of child care, kindergarten or preschool. For some children, fears and tears might continue for weeks.

"Separation anxiety is a real problem that can lead to real illnesses," says Tiffany Field, professor of pediatric psychology-psychiatry at the University of Miami Medical School. "A child first becomes irritable and fussy. The symptoms can then lead to depression, aggression, sleep adjustments, increased heart rate, upper respiratory illnesses, and constipation."

Jane Meade-Roberts has dealt with the problem from every perspective—as a distraught parent, as an elementary school teacher and (since shortly after the birth of her second child) as director of the preschool she operates in her Salinas, Calif. home. "I was an expert," says Meade-Roberts. "I'd read all the books and done all the things a parent can do to reassure her. I knew what was happening and why. But I'd still drive to work in tears."

The saving grace was that when she went to collect her daughter in the afternoon, Rachel would be playing happily with the other children. Field says this is a typical behavior.

"The children that protest the most when their mothers leave them are usually the ones that protest the most about leaving when their mothers come to pick them up."

Field also says that children suffer anxiety separation from other children as well, and parents should be more attentive to their children's needs. In fact, schoolmates and friends are usually more understanding than parents. "We can sit down and talk about feelings with other kids," says Meade-Roberts. "They understand, because they remember having gone through it themselves. Young children can be very sensitive and supporting to a frightened newcomer. It usually takes only a few minutes to get a child to stop crying and get involved."

Separation is an emotional problem everyone deals with throughout life. We experience varying degrees of loss when friends or family move away, when divorce severs a marriage and when a loved one dies. How we handle such partings is largely determined by how we learned to cope with early life separations. So the way in which parents help children take this giant step on the road to independence will determine how the child reacts to being left throughout life.

"Parents shouldn't make a big production of leaving their children," says Field. "Most children show less resistance when being dropped off by the father, because of the no-nonsense attitude of most fathers. Mothers have a tendency to fuss and show too much emotion if the child cries." It's normal for children to feel sad and anxious.

It's also normal for parents to suffer anxiety in turning their child over to someone else.

"In many ways, it's harder for parents than it is for the children," says Elizabeth Thomas-Garman of Nova Child Development Centers, Inc. in Arlington, Va. "The first day is hard for everyone. That's why we have a policy of calling the parents on the first day to let them know how their child is adjusting to the school. Most are relieved to know what's going on."

"Parents also shouldn't just drop off their child on the child's first day and run out the door. They should take the time to learn a little about the school and show their child that they are interested in his or her environment."

Thomas-Garman says children are very perceptive about their parents' feelings. "If they pick up that mom or dad is anxious about leaving them, then the child will also be anxious," said Thomas-Garman. Most children have adjusted to their new environment by the end of the first week. Both psychologists and teachers agree that the transition is made easier by having parent and child visit the new school before youngsters are actually enrolled and attending regularly.

Other than visiting the center or school ahead of time, parents can do nothing more to prepare their child for separation anxiety other than accept that children need to be distressed when entering a new environment. "Preparation is nothing like the actual event," said Field. (Betty Farrell Doty writes for the Salinas Californian. Nicole A. Nance writes for Gannett News Service in Washington, D.C.)

Eighty percent worry about Aids, STD's

Diseases on teens minds

By Karen S. Peterson

Teens today are stressed out by problems ranging from sexually transmitted diseases to discrimination, says a national survey of 3,282 members of Boys & Girls Clubs of America.

Eighty percent of the surveyed youngsters, ages 13-18, worry about AIDS and STDs; 77 percent, about violence to their families; 68 percent, about being the victim of violence themselves, says the study presented Wednesday in New York.

"These high-priority worries may be painful, but they may also be productive," said Alan B. Siskind of Columbia University's School of Social Work. "It is important teens see how to fit into the world around them — how to protect themselves."

Overall, 48 percent of those surveyed felt pressure from discrimination. Fifty-seven percent of blacks said they felt such pressure; 47 percent of Hispanics; and 63 percent of "others," largely Asians. The survey also found that 40 percent felt peer pressure not to do well in school; 46 percent felt peer pressure to cut classes, but 76 percent said they hardly ever do; 34 percent felt there was peer pressure to commit a minor crime; and 21 percent to join a gang.

Some 42 percent felt they were pressured to have sex; 42 percent, to drink; and 26 percent, to take drugs. But other findings were upbeat. Seventy-one percent said they were confident of their ability to get a good education; 68 percent, to get a good job; and 68 percent, of having a good family life.

The youth development organization, with 1.5 million members, also officially announced its name change from Boys Clubs of America. "We are reflecting our true national membership — both boys and girls," said Director Thomas Garth. The move reflects the fact that girls already belong to the club nationwide. It was not the result of a lawsuit or pressure from women's groups, Garth said. (Karen S. Peterson writes for USA TODAY.)

Northeastern set for new "start"

By George Pappas

Northeastern Illinois University is in the NCAA Division I bracket for intercollegiate athletics. What does all this mean? Well, it means we could get wiped out in some games by some big, massive universities looking to improve its record on poor little U.N.I. Some answers?

The cancer physician in the movie "Terms of Endearment" would say "expect the worst, but hope for the best."

Cartoon character Snagglepuss after seeing U.C.L.A. coming our way would probably "Exit, stage right."

But Sports Information Director Tom Lake is more realistic. He should be because first of all, he's not in a cartoon or in a movie. But most importantly, he realizes that this is a big step for U.N.I.

"This is what we've been working for," Lake said. "We are in the process of installing a whole new program. We are building a program for the future. The coaches are building their teams now, and for the future."

U.N.I. intercollegiate officials are even promoting the 1990-1991 campaign "THE START OF SOMETHING BIG."

Big disappointment? Not really. The women's volleyball team isn't going up against the University of Texas or U.S.C. this year. It's more realistic so the games will be more competitive.

The women's tennis team is already off to an impressive start sidestepping Rosary College 5-4 on September 7. Coach Mike Baer recruited a whole new team, except for one player.

Both the volleyball and tennis coaches went out and got some decent student/athletes this past year.

Volleyball coach Deborah Duncan now has Diana Lynn Yacono, Sharon Ahern and Marcy DeFalco to help improve on last year's team. Two of these three newcomers are junior college transfers, the route all good universities go to bulk up its teams.

"We needed immediate help and the JC's are the way to go for that college experience," Duncan said.

All of U.N.I.'s teams have improved with JC transfer players this year. The fall teams this year are the Cross Country team, the Men's golf team, the men's and women's swimming and diving team, the women's tennis team, the women's volleyball team and the men's and women's basketball team. The 1990 Fall sports schedule can be obtained at the P.E. building on the south end of campus.

UNINOTES

Some home games to check out:

Women's tennis; 9-17 Valparaiso University. 9-19 Illinois Institute of Technology. 9-21 University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee. 9-28 Chicago State University. Away but not too far away games are 10-1 at U. of Illinois-Chicago and 10-3 at University of Chicago. All games at 3:00 sharp. Bring your Wimbledon snob attitude.

Women's volleyball; 10-19 University of Akron. Some close-away games. 10-11 at Chicago State. 10-17 at U. Of Illinois-Chicago.

Cross country and golf meets are always away so figure it out for yourself. The swimming teams should have home games but the U.N.I. legal red tape just ain't fixin' the cracks.

Basketball starts in late November so I'll fill you in later.

If you have any questions and want to drop me a line, drop it in the mail slot in the newsroom which is E-049, downstairs next to the cafeteria.

Intramural and recreation

There's something for everyone

By Tom Lake

Recreation and intramural participation is growing rapidly. Over the last twelve months interest has increased 10% from the same time last year. Since moving into the new P.E. Complex, the facility usage has more than doubled. With the Fall Term getting under way and it's time to take a closer look at the Northeastern Illinois Program.

The purpose of the Recreation and Intramural Program is to provide an opportunity for students, faculty, staff, alumni, and community (18 years and older) to enjoy satisfying experiences related to their specific needs, whether they be of a competitive or recreational nature. With the new P.E. Complex, a person can take advantage of the intramural and Recreation Program at just about any time of the day. The hours of operation have increased from 25 hours per week to over 65 (Monday-Saturday). The increased gym space has allowed the Intramural Program to move from 5 hours per week to 15.

A variety of activities are offered at different times throughout the year. These include swimming, basketball, volleyball, weight training, badminton, table tennis, racquetball, softball, soccer, aerobic exercise, wallyball, as well as many others. Special events, like the recreation all-nighter during homecoming week last January, are planned for the upcoming year. In the fall, activities will be taking place during new student week that will include a cook-out to familiarize everyone with the Recreation and Intramural Program. The possibility for adding new activities if there is enough interest is always available.

A newly formed branch of Intramurals, that will be in full swing in the fall, is the Club Sports Program which is open to the student body for those individuals or groups interested in forming a club team. It is for those students that are a bit more highly skilled and are interested in competition with other colleges and universities in the Chicagoland area that offer club sport programs. Anyone interested in more information should contact Director Jim Hawrysko, who will oversee the administration of the Club Sports Program, at ext. 2884.

The department is in the process of developing an Intramural Advisory Board. The main objective of the Board is to aid in programming to better fill the needs of the participants and to keep that interest growing. One way of keeping this interest is by way of a monthly newsletter announcing new events and also to inform the participants of general Intramural and Recreation news, trends and features. If anyone is interested in the Board or has some suggestions, they should contact Julie Morgan, Assistant Director of Intramurals and Recreation at ext. 6293.

There is no additional charge for students to use the modern, well-equipped facilities. All that is needed is a valid student I.D.. Faculty, Staff, Alumni, and Community must pay a once a year/term membership fee, and they are eligible to participate in all of the programs offered.

Information on all of the programs and current schedules of events being offered may be obtained at the information desk in the P.E. Complex or from the Intramural and Recreation office (Room 1110) in the same building.

Women's tennis 3-0; Johnson wins DePaul golf tournament for Northeastern

Northeastern sports in full swing

Cross Country

The Northeastern Cross Country teams opened their season on September 7th in a rare Friday night meet at Bradley University in Peoria, Illinois.

The men's top finisher was junior Joe Renguso who came in 50th with a time of 28:40. Sophomore Jim Matras who came in 71st place at 29:47. Rounding out the Golden Eagle squad were freshman John Barone at 90th with a 32:52, freshman Dave Bryan 95th with a 33:59, and senior Ferdi Alfajora at 99th with a 36:11.

"It was a rough first meet," said head coach Tom Lake. "The competition was strong and a tough course. We need a lot of work at practice to be at the level I feel we can compete at. From this point on the season is not going to get any easier."

The Golden Eagle Women's team began its first season of cross country after a several year layoff. "The race was very similar to the men's in that it was a tough field and hard course for the early season," said Lake. "I was very proud of the teams performance. They wouldn't quit and finished strong."

Leading the way for the women was junior Antonette Griseta who finished 62nd with a time of 22:42. Placing just behind her was senior Edie Gold who finished at 63rd in a dash for the finish with a time of 22:43. Three freshman closed out the race with a 25:22, and Tracey Christman at 80th with a 27:50.

Golf

The Northeastern golf team opened the 1990

season with two meets last week. On Tuesday Sept 4th, at Mattoon C.C. the Golden Eagles placed 11th out of 14 teams with Ray Johnson as low man with a 75. At Foss Park C.C. on Wednesday Sept 5th, the team fared better with a 3rd place finish out of 9 schools. Brian Bialkowski was the leader with a 77.

"The weather both days was unbearably hot," said head coach Red Seltzer. "I think it hurt all the teams." We struggled a bit as my top players are not hitting like they should. Tom Fanselow should be under 80 and both days he hit 82. Johnson had a 75 and then an 83 which doesn't do us any good either. We will do much better once we play up to our level."

On Tuesday Sept. 11th, they did just that. Johnson led the way with a 74 to win the tournament and Northeastern squeaked out a one stroke victory over tournament host DePaul at Glendale Lakes C.C. The tournament was one on the fourth man score, an 82 by Senior Mike Solarte.

"I played very well and I was hitting my irons pure," said Johnson. "It just feels great to win one of these things."

Women's Tennis

"It was a thriller," according to head coach Mike Baer as the team posted a 5-4 opening victory against Rosary College, on Sept 7th.

"I was really holding my breath as the match went along," said Baer.

The turning point in the match came as junior Sofia Lazariotis won her match that went three sets to tie the score at 3-3. "It was a gutty performance, and she did a great job," said Baer.

The winning match came in #2 doubles as junior Katie Hull and junior Staci Noble defeated their opponent.

Northeastern then took on College of St. Francis on Sept. 10th and won by default because St. Francis could only bring 3 players. Their next opponent was Condordia Collge on Sept. 12 were they were victorious again.

Volleyball

It's a new season for the Northeastern volleyball squad as they have played five matches in the early going. Despite their 0-5 record, head coach Debbie Duncan is excited about their play.

"I am happy for the most part with their play but we need to put some wins on the board," said Duncan.

in the opening weekend of play, the team dropped matches against Winona State (14-16, 15-3, 15-13, 15-5) and Marquette (15-10, 13-15, 15-10, 15-10).

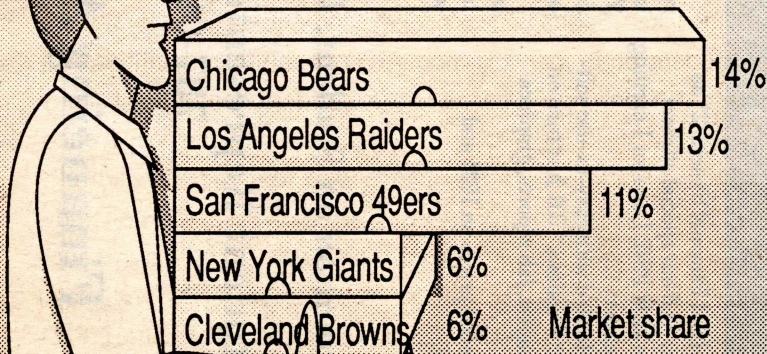

"They played real close and had a chance to win but we could not get over the hump against Marquette," said Duncan.

This past weekend, the team participated in the Indiana State Tournament and lost three games to Valparaiso (15-6, 15-13, 15-5), Indiana State (15-5, 15-10, 15-5), and Xavier (13-15, 15-11, 17-15, 15-11).

"Once again it was close against Xavier, but we just fell short," said Duncan.
