Touch-Tone registration successful

by Lisa Mandi Editor in Chief

This is the first semester that the Touch Tone registration method was the only way a student could register for courses.

"The pilot's been very successful," according to Acting Director of Admissions and Records Miriam Rivera. Admissions and Records Department.

"The evaluation were very positive. Ninety-five to 98 percent of students were glad we've implemented this system," said Rivera.

"The positive evaluations had comments about how the students hated waiting in lines and even comments which stated it was about time we got into the 20th century," she said.

New athletic director to begin September 8

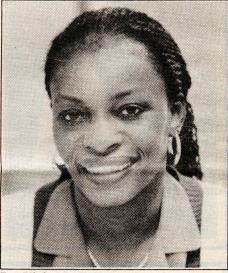

by Lisa Mandl Editor in Chief

"I'm very excited about coming to Northeastern," said the new Athletic Director in a recent interview.

Dr. Vivian L. Fuller has plans to meet with the athletic department's staff and assess and evaluate the current programs when she begins on September 8.

Fuller was chosen out of 53 applicants for the position by a Faculty, Staff and Student Search Committee which reviewed all of the applications, according to Vice President for Development and Public Affairs and Committee Chair Donn Bichsel.

The committee chose 10 to 12 applicants of which were given to President Dr. Gordon H. Lamb. Lamb picked six or seven, called their references and brought the

The committee met with all of them and wrote up pros and cons on each and the president interviewed the finalists, he added.

"We're very happy and satisfied with the results we're getting," Rivera said.

Students who used the Touch Tone registration system were sent an evaluation form to fill out with their opinions, questions and comments about the system in to the Rivera feels that the registration process was behind the times and she said that there were only a few problems.

Bull's Basketball great Michael Jordan was filming a commercial for Haines Wednesday in Northeastern's locker room.

The commericial, which was being made for Spain, by a Spanish advertising agency, took five hours to shoot, according to Lynn Atheltcs.

Shooting the commercial closed the P.E. Building for the entire day, said Gaziano.

"We were very excited," said Gaziano. "We're fortunate and not fortunate because of the students. They were unable to meet with him. "He was here on a job though and not for an autograph session."

Professor restores prairie with insects and receives award

by Cynthia Werner Staff Writer

Northeastern Professor and Preserve Manager for the Indian Boundary Prairies Ron Panzer has been given an award by the Illinois Chapter of The Nature Conservancy for his pioneering work in the field of restoring insects to prairie sites throughout northern Illinois.

"Insect restoration is important to the health of the prairie ecosystem," says Gail Schmoller, Communications Coordinator of The Nature Conservancy. "Some plants can only be pollinated by certain species of insects - if the insect species dies out, then so does the plant. Insects also serve as food for other prairie animals."

Panzer is a consultant to various environmental groups and his work for The Nature Conservancy has been on the cutting edge of the new science of restoring prairie insects to their native habitats, according to The Nature Conservancy.

By collecting hundreds of the rare gorgone checkerspot butterflies, and carefully transporting them, Panzer succeeded in restoring the insect species to the Nachusa Grasslands Conservancy preserve near Dixon. Other successful projects have been the restoration of the prairie frog hopper and bunchgrass grasshopper to Ron Panzer surveys a prairie he restored. Photo courtesy of The Nature Conservancy Nachusa Grasslands and the Franklin's ground squirrel to the Indian Boundary Prairies, according to the Conservancy.

Panzer received the 1992 Cyrus Mark Conservation Award during the Illinois Chapter's annual meeting for exceptional work in the field of conservation on August 15 at the Indian Boundary Prairies in Markham. The Nature Conservancy is an international, non-profit conservation organization.

Prairie restoration projects continue all around the Chicagoland area. While most of Illinois had at one time been prairie, less than one-tenth of one percent now remains. Volunteers learn about and care for sites by cutting brush, gathering and planting native prairies seed and by holding controlled burns. Interested students may contact The Nature Conservancy at (312) 346-8166 for any additional information.

Biology professor plays crucial role to prairie

by Cynthia Werner Staff Writer

NEIU biology professor reminisced about what it was like to try to save natural areas during the 1960's and 1970's before there was an organized movement to save prairies during a speech at the annual meeting of the Illinois Chapter of The Nature Conservancy held at the 252-acre Indian Boundary Prairies on August 15.

played a crucial role in prairie conservation. He has traveled throughout Illinois in search of sites, instructed on prairie management and restoration methods. He initiated and remains involved in the management of the 600-acre Fermilab Prairie, probably the world's largest grassland restoration.

"The work of Dr. Betz has been enormously helpful in educating both the public and scientific circles on the importance of preserving our prairies' biotic diversity through acquisition and stewardship," says Illinois Chapter director Al Pyott. "He has been an inspiration for the Conservancy."

Record year for student loan purchases

SPRINGFIELD, IL. - The Illinois Designated Account Purchase Program (IDAPP) reached a new plateau in student loan purchases at the close of fiscal year 1992, which ended June 30.

IDAPP, the seventh largest student loan secondary market in the nation, purchased its $1 billion in student loans from lenders. IDAPP is a division of the Illinois Student Assistance Commission (ISAC).

The Participation of lenders in the student loan program is significantly enhanced by IDAPP's comprehensive services. IDAPP's services to lenders also helps students who might otherwise have difficulty getting a student loan because they could be considered "high risk" borrowers without the services of a secondary market.

"By purchasing student loans from the lenders who originated the loans, IDAPP is helping lenders free up some of their monies to make new student loans," said Gary Rieman, ISAC Director of Capital Development. "The working relationship between ISAC and its lenders has long been a good, effective partnership, one which helps the students of Illinois in pursuing their goals of higher education," said Rieman.

Once lenders sell their student loans to IDAPP, IDAPP's loan collectors work assertively to prevent loan defaults. During this past year, IDAPP's collection efforts from students netted over $60.3 million, an all-time one-year record.

Since August 1966, Illinois lenders have provided over $5 billion in student loans to help Illinois residents attend postsecondary institutions. IDAPP works closely with over 800 lenders to ensure that loans are accessible to students and their families.

ISAC is a state agency which administers over 15 financial assistance programs to assist with postsecondary education.

Resume Workshop and Resume Service offered by Management Club

by Paul Unger Management Club President

"May I have a copy of your resume?" is a question students love to hear, but often find disconcerting, because theirs is either nonexistent or hopelessly out of date.

In preparation for "Meet the Firms Day" on September 24, the Management Club is offering its annual "Resume Workshop" on Thursday, September 10. Two sessions are scheduled so that both day and evening students may attend: during Activity Hour from 1:40 to 2:50 p.m. and again at 7 to 8:20 p.m. Both sessions will be held in Room 3109 in the Classroom Building.

Taught by Dr. Allen Shub and Mary O'Malley from the College of Business and Management, the program will focus on practical ways to write and prepare a one-page resume that business organizations will find so attractive that they will want to call in the sender for an interview. "Our workshop is designed primarily for individuals who are still in school, but have begun their job search in earnest," said Shub."Wedohaveaformat for the more experienced man or woman which we will be happy to share with those who request it."

typed through a new service offered by the Management Club in conjunction with an outside typing service. Interested individuals should contact O'Malley at (312) 583-4050, extension 2648.

O'Malley will provide the necessary forms, guidance on resume preparation and make arrangements with the typist.

The fee for this service is $15 with a three-day turn around time promised. Additional copies of the resume will be provided at a very low cost.

Information on the Resume Workshop and Service will be available at the Management Club's table at the forthcoming Student Organization Fair scheduled for September 16 and 17 in the Commuter Center.

'Meet the Firms Day' planned

by Joe Rams, Accounting Associates President and Bruce Brzoska, Finance Club President

Over 30 Chicago area business firms and government organizations are expected to send representatives to the "Meet the Firms" Day" planned for Thursday, September 24, in Alumni Hall from 2:30 to 6:30 p.m. Jointly sponsored by the Placement Office and the Clubs in the College of Business and Management, this annual event is designed to provide students from the College with the opportunity to meet with representative of possible future employers.

"This event is planned as an informal type of program," points out Dr. C. T. Chen, chairman of the Accounting Department and the guiding light of the Meet the Firms program. "We want to 'showcase' the highly qualified students we have at Northeastern."

Science and engineering students can attend National Laboratory's Graduate School Fair

Are you uncertain about what you will do after receiving your undergraduate degree in science or engineering? Have you been thinking about graduate school, but find that you have a lot of unanswered questions? Do you really know which graduate school is best for you?

Last year over 650 undergraduate science and engineering majors found the answers to many of their questions regarding graduate school by attending Argonne National Laboratory's 4th Annual Graduate School Fair in Science and Engineering. These students had the opportunity to talk directly with faculty representatives from over 145 of the finest graduate school programs in the United States.

The 1992 Fair, scheduled for October 3, promises to be even bigger and better. Approximately 140 faculty representatives will be in attendance. The University of Illinois, Princeton University, Yale University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Northwestern University, Georgia Institute of Technology, California Institute of Technology, and Carnegie-Mellon University, are just a few of the universities sending faculty to the Fair.

Fields which will be represented include chemistry, physics, biology, computer science, engineering, and mathematics. The day's activities will begin with a number of brief field-specific presentations on a variety of topics, including: how best to prepare for graduate school, how to choose the graduate school which is best for you, financial support available to graduate students and what career opportunities await you once you have obtained your graduate degree. For the remainder of the day, students will be able to meet, one-on-one, with the university faculty representatives to discuss graduate programs. Undergraduate participants will also have the opportunity to take brief tours of a number of different Argonne research facilities.

Faculty and Student Program Leader at Argonne and Fair Coordinator John Mateja points out that enrollments in science and engineering graduate programs in the United States have severely declined over the last two decades. The percentages of B.S. degree holders in these fields who attain Ph.D.'s has fallen from 12 percent to approximately six percent over that time. Projections indicate that this decline, combineed with the increasing demand of our technology-based society for highly trained scientists and engineers, will lead to serious manpower shortages in the 1990s. This means, of course, that there will be excellent employment opportunities for those students who obtain an advanced degree. Not only juniors and seniors, but sophomores and freshmen as well, should attend the Graduate School Fair and begin planning a future which includes advanced study.

Argonne National Laboratory, a Department of Energy facility, is located 25 miles southwest of Chicago and can be reached by taking Interstate 55 west past the 294 Tri-State Tollway to the Cass Avenue South exit. The morning presentations will begin at 9 a.m. Discussions with the faculty representatives and tours of Argonne research facilities will start at 10 a.m. and conclude at 3 p.m. For more information or a list of the university graduate departments attending the Fair, write or call Christine O'Brien, Division of Educational Programs, Argonne National Laboratory, Argonne, Illinois 60439-4845, or phone (708) 252-9378.

Students can have their resumes professionally

According to Chen, "No promises of actual job offers are asked from our visiting firms. Our goal is to have them meet faculty and students informally so that they might get an idea of the services and facilities our College has to offer. Of course, we are very pleased when students are asked by one of the representatives for a copy of their resume for future reference."

Joe Rams, senior student in the College of Business and Management, president of Accounting Associates and chairman of Meet the Firms Day, urges participants to "bring lots of resumes and wear business attire" — two keys to a successful experience at any job fair.

The event is designed to provide students, faculty and business representatives an opportunity to meet in the traditional job fair setting. At 6:30 p.m., faculty, committee members, club officers and business guests are invited to a buffet dinner in the Golden Eagles Room. At that time, guests will have an additional opportunity to visit and learn more about each other's organizations.

Bruce Brzoska, president of the Finance Club and co-chair of the event, points out, "We expect over 300 students to attend this event. All of us on the committee worked very hard to make this program happen. I feel certain that the corporate representatives will become much better acquainted with Northeastern and come to appreciate the types of resources we have to offer here." For further information about "Meet the Firms Day," contact

Director of Placement Loren Coleman, in Room B-117, or phone him at (312) 583-4050, extension 3119.

The Desk provides the following services; general information, local and national newspapers, stamps, locker rental, vending refunds, FAX service, discount tickets to Cineplex and Lowes theatres. This summer discount tickets for Great America will be available for $18, valued at $24.

Opinion

Independent needs YOU!

Welcome one and all to the beginning of what I hope will be another year of information (some pointless) and entertainment.

I find a slight problem that's facing me down in this hole-inthe-wall office that Independent's staff call home. That little problem is that we can't exist without YOU!

I'm on a mission. I need one (1) business manager (Paul Soucek graduated, this is his last issue with us), new staff writers (so many of our previous staff have graduated and have somehow been able to tear themselves away), students with ANY kind of layout experience, and photographers, who preferably know how to develop their own photos.

How can you help Independent on this mission? Come on, play along. Well, you can stop by and talk to me, Lisa Mandl, in Room E-049, located between the cafeteria and the Game Room, reach me by phoning (312) 794-2812, or attend the "First Official Fall 1992 Meeting" tomorrow, September 1, at 1:40 p.m., in our office.

If you feel a little leary about walking in, you can look for Independent's table in the Commuter Center on September 17 and 18 during "Fall Into Fun" week. (We don't grab you and enslave you too quickly!)

The only requirement we have for students to be a part of the paper is to have a valid Northeastern I.D.

We can turn any English writer into a journalism writer. A specific format is used in writing each news, features and entertainment related stories. Once you have the format down, you can write anything.

An extra incentive is the payment you get for any story that is published in Independent.

A student receives $10 for a front page article, $5 for any article inside the paper (a student is only paid for one entertainment related story), $5 per photo published, $10 for the layout of a page, and $5 per page for paste-up. Story placement is decided by the editor in terms of newsworthiness.

As part of the student activity fees you pay, you pay in part for the production of the newspaper. Being a part of Independent can be very gratifying, you get to see your name in print, get to meet other students, and see what your dollars are going into.

Working for Independent can be a great learning experience and a step forward no matter which way you are headed.

Independent is the student newspaper of Northeastern Illinois University, 5500 N. St. Louis Ave., Chicago, IL. 60625, (312) 794-2812, room E-049. Independent is published bi-monthly (every two weeks) except during final examinations and semester breaks.

Faculty Update

Vice president named to academy board

Dr. Melvin C. Terrell, Vice President for Student Affairs, has been named to the Board of Directors of North Lawndale's Community Christian Alternative Academy (CCAA) for a two-year term, beginning in September.

"I am proud to serve on the CCAA board," Terrell said.

"The school serves as an important example of how education and job-readiness skills training can measurably improve the quality of life of our youth and our community."

Terrell has served as counselor and mentor to many minority students in higher education. He holds a master's from Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, a master's from Loyola University, and a bachelor of science from Chicago State University. He has lived in North Lawndale nearly all his life.

Bush/Quayle campaign activites

The Bush/Quayle campaign office, located at 9575 W. Higgins Road in Rosemont, planned several convention watching activities in the Chicagoland area this past week. Hundreds of Bush supporters met at ethnic restaurants and bars to cheer their favorite speakers and candidates on to victory in November.

Greg Leopold, Rosemont office manager of the Bush/Quayle campaign, acknowledges the events were great successes. "The convention speeches were all wonderful and everyone who came out had a good time listening, cheering and meeting fellow Bush/ Quayle supporters." rector of the Bush/Quayle Illinois Campaign, urges volunteers to participate in what is sure to be a very exciting campaign. "We've got a number of activities for everyone to get involved," she stated, before a large audience of coordinators. "Those that are interested in participating should call us at (708) 698-1992 and ask for Steve Kubiczky, Bush/Quayle Volunteer Coordinator."A large crowd of supporters gathered at Goose Island Brewery, 1800 N. Open poetry contest being sponsored Owings Mills, Maryland—The National Library of Poetry has announced that $12,000 in prizes will be awarded this year to over 250 poets in the North American Open Poetry Contest. The deadline for the contest is September 30. The contest is open to everyone and entry is free.

Any poet, whether previously published or not, can be a winner. Every poem entered also has a chance to be published in a deluxe, hardbound anthology.

To enter, send one original poem, any subject and any style, to the National Library of Poetry, 11419 Cronridge Dr., P.O. Box 704-ZK, Owings Mills, MD 211117. The poem should be no more than 20 lines, and the poet's name and address should appear on the top of the page.

Entries must be postmarked by September 30. A new contest opens October 1.

getting busy signals and being unable to get through to register.

"We're looking into purchasing new lines which will eliminate that, and also we've tried to schedule students so that everyone will be able to get through."

Another problem with Touch Tone registering is if a student wants to get into a closed course or a course where a special permit is needed.

"All of that will be taken care of by the department heads. The departments will be very involved in the process. The chairpersons and deans will have to enter a code and the student will then be able to register for the course.

"This will allow the chairs and deans to look at seating capacities and information about the courses daily instead of having to wait for all of the paperwork to come through." Eventually, Rivera hopes that the system will advance enough that students will even be able to validate using a credit card by phone.

"This system is beneficial to students," she said.

This system has been tried two previous times while the on-campus registration was taking place. Through those two pilots, a lot was learned about the system, according to Rivera.

This registration method, according to Rivera, will be implemented from now on.

"All the information for Touch Tone registration will be printed in the Spring 1992 course schedule. We're already begun planning advance registration for Spring."

The system itself is fantastic, says Rivera. "A student is prompted through everything. It isn't too technical."

'Angel Dust' is a good, sound trip

by Lisa Mandi Entertainment Editor

Listening to Faith No More's newest album is definitely a good trip.

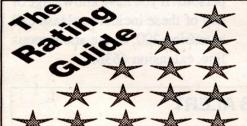

The good part about this trip is that the only part of your body this can hurt is your ears if you play the album at the correct level, LOUD!

Hearing the "Angel Dust" album is just like getting an incredible rush of adrenaline after you've spent an evening moshing to an incredible band in concert.

The album opens with "Land of Sunshine" which really shows how far Faith No More have come since before the days Mike Patton jumped on for their "The Real Thing" album.

The song speeds in and out of intense guitar riffs by Jim Martin and Bill Goutld's bass rhythms, and with Patton's voice, nothing can go wrong.

Patton's voice has definitely improved since their previous album, and with the keyboard stylings of Roddy Bottum and drums by Mike Bordin, everything is put together for a harsh, yet smooth and crisp sound that Faith

No More is known for.

Their hit single, "Midlife Crisis," definitely surpasses anything FNM have done. With the incredible styling and melody, this song is sure to give the band another classic. Chuck Moseley, who bailed before "The Real Thing" was released, was the voice behind "We Care A Lot."

Two other fantastic songs on "Angel Dust" are "RV," a song from opint of view of a southern-hillbilly sort of person that Patton fabulously sings; and "Be Aggressive," a cheerleadery, anthemy song.

It's extremely hard to choose great tracks from this album because from start to finish there isn't a bad track. The first half of the CD, is better then the second half, but the album never falls short.

If you're looking for a cover track, "Midnight Cowboy" really isn't one. FNM recorded that song, for who knows what reason, the same way the original was played.

In the words of FNM, put the album on LOUD, and: "Sing and Rejoice!" $\star \star \star \star$

Warning this is a rip-off It could have been better Average It's cool Faster Pussycat's lead singer Taime Downe talks about how the band was put in Slaughter's place on the Ozzy Osbourne tour from a hotel room somewhere in Detroit.

Interview by Lisa Mandl Entertainment Editor

LISA: How does the band feel about getting to tour with Ozzy Osbourne? Are you glad that Mark Slaughter grew a node in his throat which enabled Faster Pussycat to take Slaughter's place on the tour?

TAIME DOWNE: I think it's great that we're getting to play. I'm sorry about Mark, but I'm glad that we're able to be on this tour.

LISA: Why did it take the band three years to bring out "Whipped?"

TAIME: It didn't take us three years. We toured for about a year and then we went to it, so it was only about two years. Then we had to wait for John Jansen [the album's producer]. He was getting kind of restless so we told him to go work with someone else. He went to work with Love/Hate and two weeks later we de- cided we were ready to start and we had to wait for him.

LISA: What's the biggest change in the music since your self-titled debut in 1987?

TAIME: I think we've grown in terms of songwriting.

LISA: What's your hit single, "Nonstop to Nowhere," about? TAIME: It's about being confused and having no idea where you're going.

LISA: How did you come to write "Mr. Love Dog" for Mother Love Bone's Andrew Wood?

TAIME: I've always been a big fan of Love Bone and when he overdosed and died it was a sad thing.

LISA: Ilike the groups' fast songs, but one of my favorite songs is "House of Pain." Whose father is the song about and was it difficult to write? just coming up with the right words.

LISA: What are your favorite songs on "Whipped?"

TAIME: That's not possible to say. It's kind of like having to choose between your 12 children and say which you like better. I like "Body Thief" and "Mr. Love Dog" the most.

LISA: What happened that Brentt Bradshaw replaced drummer Mark Michaels?

TAIME: When Mark was arrested for Heroin we knew that was it. We knew Mark had been taking it and we were trying to help him clean up his act. We were always throwing him out of the band. When the whole band was going to be brought down because of it while we were on tour, that was it. It was either he clean up or get out and he couldn't clean up. It's working out great with Brentt.

LISA: What's the hardest thing the band has had to face since the b e g i n ning?

TAIME:

Probably the biggest thing was with Mark. I hear he's playing in some band now, I hope he's cleaned himself up.

LISA: What did you think of the film "Decline of the Western Civilization II?"

TAIME: I think Penelope [Spheeris, the film's director] is cool, but it was nothing like what was going on in L.A. at that time.

LISA: Do you feel that Penelope Spheeris depicted you accurately in the film?

TAIME: Oh yeah, she got us right and it was fun watching Poison and stuff. A lot of other bands were left on the floor, Guns N' Roses, Jane's Addiction. She's a good friend of mine.

LISA: How do you feel your live show has progressed since the movie?

Rape is committed every 5 minutes! Whether it be a woman, child, grandmother or man, rape doesn't discriminate. Help a rape victim become a survivor!

Fuller comes to Northeastern from Indiana University of Pennsylvania with five years of experience as the associate director of athletics of the NCAA Division II program.

When Fuller was told about the feelings of some of the faculty and students about having an athletic department in NCAA Division I at Northeastern, she said, "the decision has already been made.

"I'm here to implement it. I was hired as the Director of Athletics and my responsibility is to athletics and the programs."

Fuller isn't disclosing future plans until she has had time to meet the staff and speak with them.

The only problem she forsees is the programs' funding.

"External funding is going to be a major issue," she said.

"We're very pleased about having Fuller here as we enter out third year in Division I," said Lamb.

"She is a dynamic and respected leader who demonstrates a deep commitment to the academic integrity of intercollegiate athletics.

"She has an exceptionally strong academic background which includes teaching in addition to her wide-ranging experience in sports management, coaching and academic advisement.

"Over the past six years, she has made over 20 professional presentations on athletic administration, minorities in athletics and women in athletics and higher education," Lamb said.

While at Indiana University at Pennsylvania, Fuller was directly responsible for the internal operations of the athletic program, which involved supervising the coaches of nonrevenue sports, fund raising, advising and academic programs, career planning for student athletes and professional development seminars for highrisk student athletes. She received her doctorate in higher education administration from Iowa State University in 1985.

She earned her master of education in 1978 from the University of Idaho.

Her bachelor of science degree in health, physical education, and recreation is from Fayetteville State University.

Fuller served as the assistant director of athletics at North Carolina A & T University from 1984 to 1987.

During her career in athletics, Fuller has held several positions including volleyball and softball coach.

She has also held the positions of assistant professor, assistant director for advisement and director of intramurals at colleges.

Fuller is replacing Dr. Dennis

Keihn who was hired as athletic director in 1988.

Keihn is leaving Northeastern to go to California with his wife who received a job there.

"I'm excited [about Fuller being hired]," said Keihn. "I think she will do a good job."

'Cultural Issues and Assessment' to be presented

"Cultural Issues and Assessment" will be presented by Dr. Derise Tolliver on Monday, September 21, at 7 p.m. at the Adler Center for Gender and Cultural Studies, 65 East Wacker Place in Chicago.

Tolliver is on the faculty at De Paul University, and is a member of the board of the Chicago chapter of Association of Black Psychologists. In her presentation, she will discuss how culture impacts our perspective and what is important for psychologists and counselors to take into consideration when working with and assessing clients.

This lecture is part of a free monthly series open to students of psychology, the professional community and the general public.

For information and registration, contact Dr. Marilyn Marks-Frey at the Adler School of Professional Psychology. Phone reservations are accepted by calling, (312) 201-5900, extension 211.
