It wasn't just fun and games Monica's dress tells all during book tour, first stop NEIU

by Tom Foley
News Editor

Dionne Warwick, world renowned psychic friend, has read the vibes of Monica Lewinski's dress and written a book about the dress' part in the Clinton scandal. Both Warwick and the dress have started a national tour which begins here at NEIU on April 13.

Publicists for the dress made the statement yesterday that "Everyone knows about the situation through the news and Monica's book and all that, but no one's ever really heard our client's side of things."

Seymour Dallas, head of the publicity firm Dewey, Gatcha and Howe, said they first sought the dress' story when the impeachment began, which would have been illegal had the dress ever had to take the stand.

"At first, the dress hemmed a little and hawed a little," said Dallas, "but it finally realized that this was the right thing to do financially. After all, it was the dress that got taken to the cleaners."

"I'll never get that experience totally off my chest," said Warwick, spokesperson for the dress. "I sometimes think that more than my reputation will be stained permanently."

The book details the happy young life of a new party dress, and the trauma of the fateful event that led to the dress' subsequent scrubbing and abduction by Monica's mother. The tension rises as Monica rescues the dress from her mother only to hand the dress over to the machinations of Kenneth Starr.

The most graphic part of the book is the in-depth description of the invasive tests, as laboratory technicians poked and prodded the dress, looking for the tell-tale bits of genetic evidence left behind by the lying White House cur.

Student reaction at NEIU is understandably mixed. Many resent the presence of the dress and the national reminder it serves as, others feel that the dress is fighting a noble battle and is the real hero in all this, while still others blame the dress for the whole incident.

"Look at how soft that dress is," said conservative arts major Randy Johnson. "Look at that plunging neckline, that perky, short hem. That dress was askin' for it, I tell ya!"

"I'd rather not think about it," said NEIU's finger-paint art specialist Abbie Stract. "It was a sad time in our nation's history, and now it's time to put it behind us and move on to new adventures in government."

Warwick and the dress will be here on April 13, from 10 p.m. until 2 a.m. in the Golden Beagles Room. Guests will be permitted to view the stained area and purchase signed copies of the book for only $34.71. Reservations for the event are being taken by W.J.C. Dry Cleaners, Ltd., Inc.

What are you doing this summer?

See page 6 to find out

You haven't heard it all until you've heard from the notorious blue dress (top). Bill, Monica and the dress enjoy happier times (right). "I don't know what happened," it sobs. "We were so happy together. It was a perfect fit."

Y2K bug found on campus, protect all important documents

by Sara Queen
Staff Writer

After an intense four month investigation the story broke on the Northeastern Illinois campus of a bug infestation that is threatening the academic lives of students and faculty.

Four months ago, an anonymous tip came to sources to the Independent that all the reconstruction that has been taking place over the last few months is not for the improvement of the existing building. It is a massive effort to exterminate the infested walls of the E-wing and the Commuter Center.

The main infested building, the popular Commuter Center, was more than a host community for studious, hard working students, it was the home of a moving wall of Y2K bugs that are now known to have caused the disappearance of many term papers, study guides and other paper products. The bugs' main form of nutrition is the fibers that make up the common everyday paper product. That is why it would make sense that these annoying pests would find a college campus an accommodating home.

The bugs were thought to come from a South American rain forest and then found their way to the United States by way of human transportation. They live high in the canopies of the dense foliage of the rain forest where they find the fibers in the trees their main food consumption. They are thought to be descendants of the Y1K bug, a distant member of the beetle family.

Some people confuse this bug with the well known termite, but these bugs are bigger and consume more paper fibers than a whole colony of termites. These bugs have a life expectancy that surpasses most bugs of their kind due to the simplicity of their diet.

Around Campus

compiled by Thomas J. Foley, News Editor

Greetings, fellow students! I hope you all enjoyed your break, because now the semester kicks into high gear academically, socially and culturally. April 1 in particular is a very busy day around campus, so be sure to check out some of the interesting, exciting and, yes, even dangerous events of the day.

Yummy stuff

The Avant-Garde Club is sponsoring a Bake Sale on April 1 in the Village Square from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. They are advertising some quite unusual dishes, such as fried lotus petals smothered in butterfly spit, and flatkes, which are chocolate fudge brownies made with champagne and covered in birdseed.

The Thoroughbred Club is also having a bake sale at that date, time and place. They will be serving baked horsemeat, taken from their recent losing investment in the Belmont Stakes (or should it be 'Steaks?').

They'll talk, you'll listen

The bird from the movie Paulie is coming to campus on April 1 and will be speaking in the Golden Beagles Room from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. The talk is sponsored by the SETA Club (Students for the Ethical Treatment of Animals), and the topic will be investment opportunities in Central and Southern America for ambitious animals, so if you're an ambitious animal, check it out.

Also, SETA is sponsoring a visit by the Taco Bell Chihuahua, who will be speaking immediately afterwards about racism in advertising.

The final guest for this April 1 is world-renowned psychic friend Dionne Warwick. The talk starts at 3 p.m. and is sponsored by the Business and Investment Club. The topic will be How to Utilize Psychokinetic Energy to Play the Stock Market.

Well, isn't this special

There will be a new recreational event in the Auxiliary Gym at 1:40 p.m. It is Giant Boa Constrictor Wrestling. Each snake is over 10 feet long and hungry. The goal is to develop survival skills, and the incentive for student participation is a final grade of 'A' in every subject this semester. The event has the added bonus of thinning out the student body, since those who fail in this endeavor rarely survive.

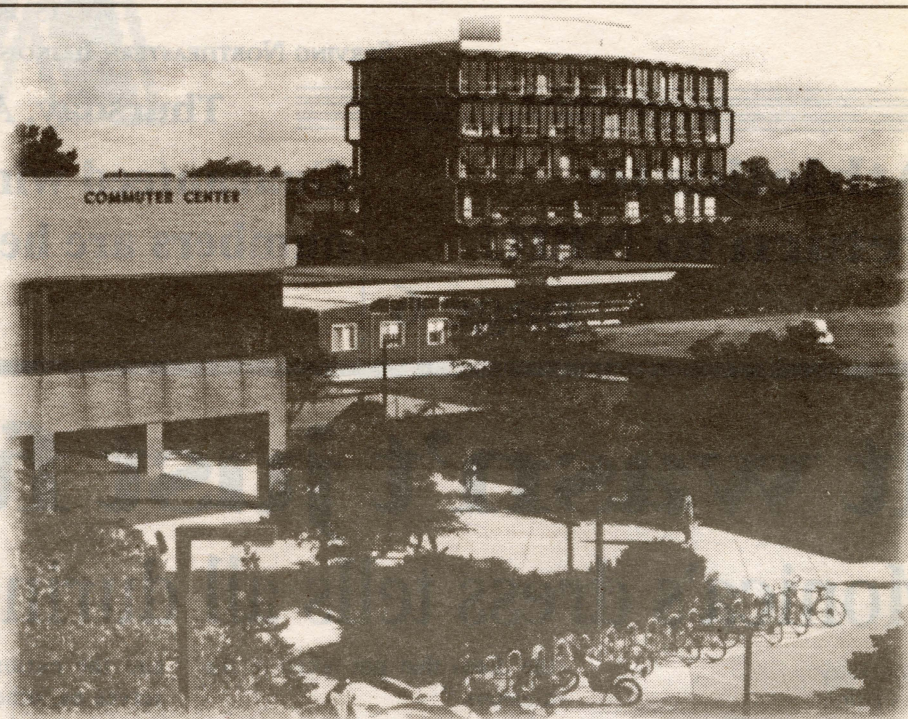

The Public Safety Office is sponsoring a tractor-trailer pull at 3 p.m. in the A-Lot. Participants will be required to pull a 30 ton trailer loaded with tractors a total of 100 feet. Participants who succeed will be allowed to become Public Safety Officers for a day, and will be allowed to enforce whatever conduct they so desire. Health Services will be on hand to provide hernia relief.

Construction will begin on a giant, wooden chicken in the F-Lot at 8 p.m. tonight. Sponsored by the Wargames Club, this event has in mind the eventual hostile takeover of nearby North Park University. May Neeak, the club president, said, "it's a strategy similar to the old Trojan Horse of the Greeks. It will be big enough to hold 50 of the bravest and baddest NEIU students, who will spring out of the chicken, taking the North Parkers by surprise. We will then proceed to whup up on those little sissy-marys. We're sick of their superior attitude, so we're going to annex their land." Volunteers should be carpenters or body-builders.

Hear ye, hear ye!!

In keeping with the idea of our university's mission statement, the Access Road will be renamed the Access, Excellence and Diversity Road.

Some new programs are being implemented at NEIU, starting today. The new Men's Studies Program was unveiled, featuring such courses as Hogging the Remote Control, How to Pretend You're Listening When You're Really Watching the Game, and How to Find Your Destination Without Asking Directions.

Another program beginning today is the re-recycle program. The goal of this program is to bring the recycling process right into the university. Students and staff will be required to clean, rinse, sterilize and refill all glass products right here on campus. The basement of the new Fine Arts Building is being reserved for storage vats, from which the refilling can take place.

Some scholarship programs have come under scrutiny, lately. It was announced that on April 1 the university will host gladiatorial tournaments to let the students themselves determine the distribution of the scholarships. It is also expected to have a beneficial effect on the parking situation.

Happy April Fool's Day!!

Do you have an opinion?
Well keep it to yourself.

We don't want to hear it.

Here's a stamp, write to someone who cares.

The (b)eagle has landed at NEIU

New mascot announced

by Tom Foley
News Editor

It is the end of an era at NEIU. The Golden Eagles nickname is no more. From now on, the name of the school's sports teams will be the Golden Beagles. This change will also affect the former Golden Eagles Room, which will now be the Golden Beagles Room.

"We felt it was the right time for a change," said a university president who wished to remain anonymous. "The Eagle bit has been done to death. We want to be original when we kick off our new sports program. We want to have a name that will be instantly recognizable, and not too expensive to change."

The change required only adding one letter to the sign above the famous conference room and in the Physical Education Building.

Coach Bully Foryoo, who also wished to remain anonymous, said, "In the past, other teams have said that we were a dog team. Now, we can honestly live up to that reputation."

Some things haven't changed, though. After games, the new Golden Beagles will still be required to hit the Golden Showers.

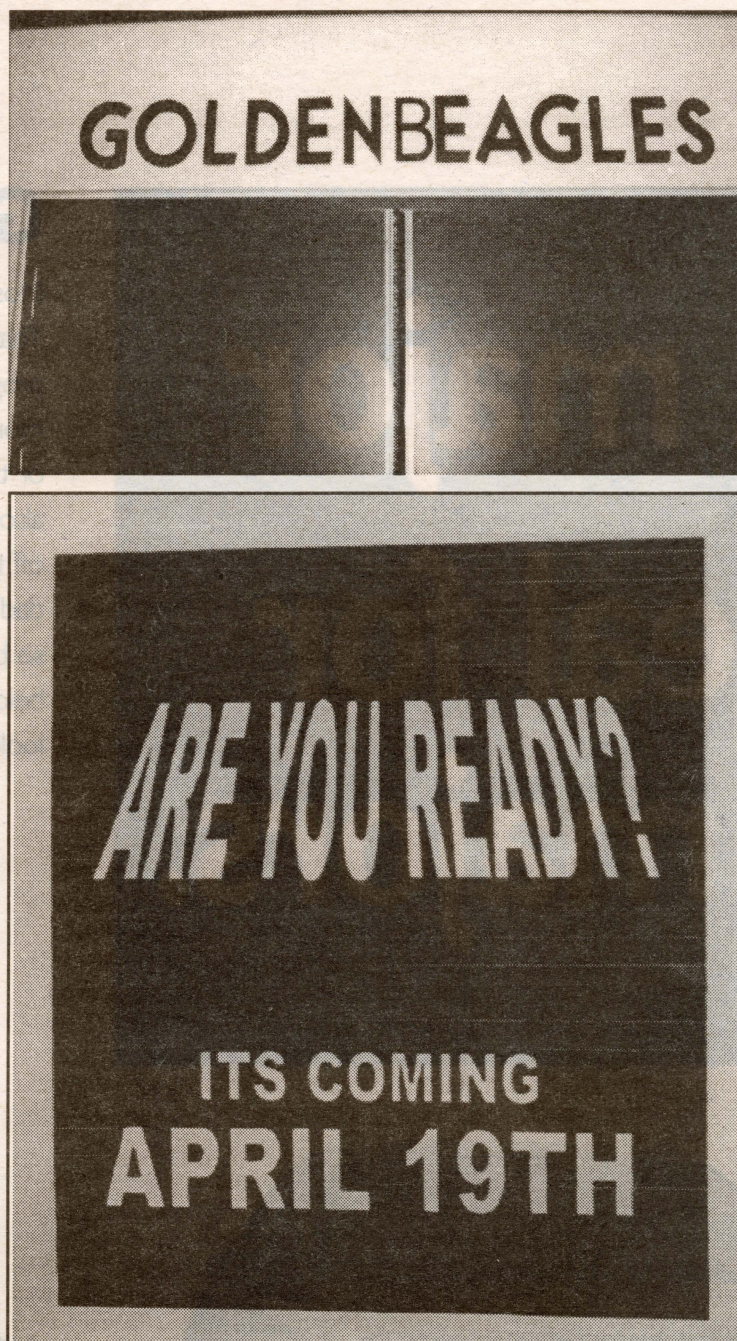

In order to kick off the new program, the university has purchased a live beagle, who wishes to remain anonymous but is named Barney. Students will be allowed to visit and pet the new mascot, and there's more. Another cost-saving measure for the university will be to let the mascot out, requiring students to take him home at night. Students will earn extra credit for successfully caring for the dog, but will receive failing marks should anything bad befall the beagle while in their care. Some student representatives were critical of this policy.

A student government president who wished to remain anonymous said, "Beagles, like most dogs, live to be about 12 to 13 years. That means that a decade from now, the dog may very well pass away while in the care of a student through no fault of the students. Essentially, it is a long-term game of hot potato."

Other students were more positive. Stu Pidjerk, who wished to remain anonymous, said, "I think it's a grand idea. The SGA President's concerns are real, but won't affect me. By the time the dog dies, I'll be in graduate school. Besides, dogs live longer than most marriages last today, and I like a little permanence in my life."

Barney will be available for petting and hunting expeditions immediately.

Infested

They can grow up to six inches long, but the average size is approximately 2-3 inches in length. They are not physically harmful to humans, unless you leave a two thousand page thesis in their reach.

If you come across a bug that you think might be a Y2K bug, please call 1-800-555-KILL at once. These bugs multiply fast and need to be exterminated immediately to prevent reproduction.

The school was trying to cover up the infestation to prevent any mass chaos that the news may have caused. As previously stated, these bugs are not a threat to any human's health, just that of their hard work that has been displayed on a paper product. As for the "reconstruction" that has been going on, it should be complete and bug free by the end of the summer term. Please be patient, the well being of all will benefit once the bugs have been eliminated from the campus.

If you feel that the bug may have been transported by you to another part of the city, please contact your local Insect Control Unit in your part of the city and report it as soon as possible. The sooner we get this nasty infestation under control the sooner the people of Chicago will feel free to once again throw caution to the wind with our paper products.

NEIU news briefs

Safer sex, free parking and more

by Victor Dula
Staff Writer

Reliable sources confirm that Bill Clinton will face another impeachment trial.

Evidence indicates that the White House knew that Chinese spies were stealing American missile secrets yet did nothing for over a year.

Said Bill Clinton in the same fashion that he denied sexual relations with Monica Lewinski, "I, did not, let, the Chinese, steal, our, missile technology." Also in the same fashion, he shook that damning finger at the cameras with the rock-hard "I didn't do it" expression.

The House of Representatives will vote on whether to impeach Clinton again next week, after which it is certain the case will be tried in the Senate.

Jerry Krause re-signed Michael Jordan, Scottie Pippen, and Dennis Rodman this weekend each to one-year contracts, effectively reassembling the core of last year's world champion Bulls team.

Sources say that the three players pleaded through their agents to come back. Michael Jordan thinks the ultimate challenge in his career is yet to come, and he has something yet to prove to the rest of the world. Perhaps he will make good on his speculation in the Grant Park celebration a while back about getting "...number seven, number eight, number nine, number ten..." Scottie Pippen doesn't like it in Houston, and when Michael told him he was returning to the Bulls, Scottie followed along like an adoring little brother, risking breach of contract. Dennis Rodman was overheard crying to his 'wife' Carmen Electra, "I just don't stand out the way I used to back in Chicago; My get-ups just ain't worth sh*t no more. I don't feel special." Chicago is eager to welcome them all back, whatever their reasons.

The Public Safety Department at Northeastern will institute free parking starting in the Fall '99 semester. They say that since they cannot guarantee a parking space during peak parking times to those who have paid for parking. Also, they will ticket any vehicles parked on those raised, cement, curb-like surfaces. It is only fair to drop the parking permit system altogether. Level I, level II, car-pool, and meter spaces will be things of the past to accommodate those unfortunate folks who can't find an open parking space.

Jerry Springer will change the format of his show to that of an ultimate fighting framework. The set will be expanded to include an octagon-shaped cage in which the guests will battle it out in a no-holds-barred slug-a-thon. Bodyguard Steve and his goons will serve as referees in the new system. When asked about such a radical change in his show, Springer responded, "I felt my viewers deserved more of the juicy stuff, and it was starting to cost too much to keep the guests from fully expressing their anger. I also wanted to give Steve and his crew a more active role in the show." WFLD 32, however, is not so radical in what it will show on its station. So instead of just parts of the show cutting off the sound to edit for swearing and panning the studio audience during the violent scenes, the whole show will be a soundless moving image of the studio audience wildly cheering. The content about which of the guests will fight will not change, however. Springer tells us he will use the same topic and just give it different titles, such as Shocking Sex Secrets and Battle of the Angry Lovers, as he's done so often in the past. "It's the recipe for ratings," says Springer.

Finally, NEIU will hold its first Spring safe-sex demonstration in the auditorium. Sponsored by Student Government and endorsed by faculty and administration alike, this will prove to be a most informative presentation, as it will show those who attend the safest ways to engage in sexual intercourse and the most effective ways to avoid STDs and unwanted pregnancies. It's Broke; Don't Panic and Yes, You Can Get It Your First Time are just two of the presentations that will be delivered. This is a serious production for those who could benefit from it, not some live porn act on stage; those who would treat this as a joke or would feel the urge to "join in" are encouraged not to attend. Also, laser pens are prohibited throughout the performance. If the shiny dot of intense, red light is spotted anytime during the demonstration, on-campus police will immediately conduct a strip-search, including a full-body cavity search of all spectators until the tool is confiscated.

The Patriarch to coach NEIU re-birth

After much debate, NEIU Basketball pulls off it's own Cinderella story

by Pete Delalis
Staff Writer

No, I'm not referring to the "Greek" Patriarch, although we would certainly be doing him a favor, removing him from his non-favorable imprisonment in Turkey. Instead, it almost brings tears to my eyes to relay to you that the Associated Press (AP) announced today that the NEIU Administration and the NCAA Committee locked horns at Rosemont's Convention Center yesterday, reaching an agreement to allow NEIU full membership into the new NCAA Division I Midwest Athletic Conference (MAC).

Despite NEIU'S prior embarrassments in Division I play, NEIU'S Mens Basketball program was showing steady improvement, before having its membership privileges revoked last year. It was embarrassing enough to see NEIU drop out of Division I play, but to see NEIU's sports program in general go down the tubes was absolutely untimely, not to mention unethical.

As a little kid growing up in the Albany Park area, I saw first hand NEIU develop from a small, under-developed piece of unattractive landscaping into a very competitive and now recognized academic institution. From a sociological perspective, NEIU can be perceived as a successful institutional project that was very much needed in Albany Park's strive toward improving economic development. Needless to say, talks about NEIU re-entering Division I play have been in the making for quite some time. NEIU's economic success story did not occur overnight. It took timely administrative planning and other strategic measures to finally put NEIU on the map. However, these strategic measures were not applied toward NEIU'S Basketball program, which caused the demise of NEIU sports in general.

It took no Carl Sagan to persuade NCAA officials that NEIU belongs in Division I contention. However, it did take some professional input from a true inspirational leader to finally get the message across. Former DePaul University Mens Basketball Coach Ray Meyer attended this meeting, presenting to the NCAA Committee that his Blue Demon Basketball program at one point was in the same predicament as NEIU. Meyer added that it all boils down to an "intense game of chess," where all it takes is one right move to get a successful program in the making. The move Meyer was referring to was the necessity of intense athletic recruitment and the willingness to promise potential recruits an opportunity of a good, quality education.

Meyer stated, "NEIU can now be viewed as an appealing institution, with its contemporary architecture and its professional staff of teachers and professors. The only missing link here is opportunity, which lies in your hands!" Meyer then concluded his sales pitch by adding: "I can guarantee you, that if I was coach at NEIU, I would be able to bring the George Mikans', the Mark Aguires', the Terry Cummings', the Clyde Bradshaws', the Dave Corzines', the Joe Ponsettos' the Gary Garlands' the Curtis Watkins' the Skip Dillards' (minus his stock in Clark Oil), and the Kenny Pattersons' to this program and make NEIU a contender in NCAA Division I play!"

The NCAA Committee had heard enough! They accepted NEIU'S proposal, as did NEIU. Yes, NEIU officially announced Ray Meyer as the new head coach of their Mens Division I Basketball program. Wow! That's a stunner!

To give you a little feedback on the 84-year old Meyer, he had coached at DePaul University of Chicago for 42 seasons, winning 724 games. Meyer currently ranks seventh among coaches in career victories, and literally put a tiny Catholic institution like DePaul on the map, with its dominance in Collegiate Basketball in the late 70's and throughout most of the 80's. DePaul made it to the Final Four in the NCAA tournament in 1979, eventually losing to Larry Bird and Indiana State. Though DePaul never won a title, they sure had some powerful squads that should have, could have, but didn't!

Lastly, NEIU adopted a "new" nickname, leaving its past identity of the Golden Eagles in the dust and revealing its new identity, now known as the "Golden Beagles." One may view this story as the ultimate "Cinderella story," but I tend to view it otherwise.

April fools day: an unsolved history

The first of April, some do say,
Is set apart for All Fools' Day.
But why the people call it so,
Nor I, nor they themselves do know.

But on this day are people sent On purpose for pure merriment.
— Poor Robin's Almanac (1790)

OK, who started it?

Did the first Fools come from France, England, Mexico, Sweden or India? The truth, as in any good mystery, lies hidden in the shadows of time.

Some say that April Fools Day began in many parts of the world at the same time, in celebration of the spring equinox. Pranks were a big part of even the most boring equinox parties, everywhere from Sweden to India.

Others argue that the modern April Fool's Day followed the adoption of a reformed calendar in France circa 1564. In medieval times, the octave of New Year's began on March 25 with the eight days of festivities ending on April 1.

With the reform of the calendar under Charles IX, New Year's Day was moved from April 1 to January 1. Due to the slowness of "sandal-net" communication back then and general resistance to change, the January 1 date was not fully accepted for several years.

Those traditionalists who clung to April 1 as New Year's Day were scoffed at as "fools" and sent fake party invitations and prank gifts.

Widespread observance in England began in the 18th century. The English, Scotch and French introduced the custom to their colonies in America. One of our forefathers' favorite jokes was to send someone on a "fool's errand."
For example, one might have been asked to go out and obtain a copy of "The History of Adam's Grandfather," or bring back some "sweet vinegar."

In Scotland, April Fools Day is 48 hours long. The second day is called Taily Day and is dedicated to pranks involving the buttocks. Taily Day's gift to posterior posterity is the still-hilarious "Kick Me" sign.

The "foolish" tradition is celebrated in Mexico, too, but on a different day and for different reasons. "El Dia de los Inocentes," which is December 28, was set aside as a day for Christians to mourn Herod's slaughter of innocent children.

Over time, the tone of that "unluckiest of days" has evolved from sadness to good-natured trickery. Even the media join the fun, often running bogus news stories and radio reports.

We may never learn the true origin of April Fools Day.
However, the deeper question facing us today is, "What's the best gag I can pull off?" AprilFools.com has some intriguing suggestions.
